

STORMS EXACT HEAVY DAMAGE IN OHIO, NATION

27 Dead Over U. S. In Wake Of Snow, Sleet And Rain; City And County Hit

Heavy rain, sleet, snow and floods in the northern half of the nation and Ohio over the week-end hampered traffic, crippled power lines and left at least 27 dead today.

East Liverpool and district communities shared in the damage as the downpour roared down streets, tore up roads, clogged sewers and sent forks of Yellow creek and Beaver creek overflowing their banks.

The worst March snowstorm since the blizzard of 1888 spent its fury in the New England states today and moved northeastward over the Atlantic.

Lawrence H. Copeland, U. S. observer at Millport, reported an "unusually heavy" rainfall of 2.95 inches from Saturday night until noon today.

Rain 'Unusual'

"Shifting winds to the south were responsible for the deluge," said Mr. Copeland. He also reported a temperature drop from 46 degrees Sunday morning to 42 at 6 p. m. and 28 shortly after midnight.

With the wind returning to the west this morning, the observer said "the rainy spell broken." He said "this is unusually early for such heavy rain and ordinarily it takes several days for such storms to clear, but I look for dry, although cloudy, weather Tuesday.

Small streams in the Millport district overflowed their banks Sunday, flooding many fields. The water was receding slightly today.

The Ohio river had reached a stage of 23 feet at noon today, with a crest of 25 or 26 feet expected by officials at look. The river was rising about three-tenths of a foot an hour.

City Streets Damaged

The state faced fair and somewhat colder weather tonight in the north portion with more rain or snow forecast Tuesday night or Wednesday.

Loren W. Orr, superintendent of the city street department, reported about $1,000 damage over East Liverpool.

Some 50 feet of a new concrete wall being constructed along a run at Boyce st., East End, was washed out; sanitary sewers clogged and several roads torn up, Mr. Orr said.

The damage to the run wall represents about a day's work, the street commissioner explained. Street department employees were busy from 6 a. m. until 5 p. m. Sunday cleaning up.

Roads in the vicinity of Irontale and Cream City were inundated and cellars of numerous houses flooded when the north fork of Yellow Creek overflowed its banks Sunday morning.

Irontale District Flooded

Jefferson st. in Irontale was covered with three feet of water for several hours Sunday. Late in the afternoon the water receded, but another rise at 9:30 p. m. sent the creek back into the street.

Automobile traffic was halted, but cars were able to enter the village by detouring over back thoroughfares. The water entered the basements of about a dozen homes on one side of Jefferson st.

In Cream City, the water from the creek covered the main road to a depth of about a foot and also entered the home of Mrs. James Wile, a widow. Several basements also were filled with water. Automobiles were driven through the water-covered road with caution.

The creek was back within its banks again today and no further flood danger is expected at present.

3 Feet At Elktion

Three feet of water covered the main road in Elktion Sunday morning when the middle fork of Beaver creek overflowed. Basements of most of the houses in the lower part of the town were flooded.

High water receded in the afternoon, however. Bottom lands near W. Point were flooded Sunday.

County Engineer Charles O. Snyder

Snyder said a small strip of the West Point-Gavers dirt road was washed out late Sunday. Water entered cellars of several homes on the Depot road near Guilford.

No bridges were reported washed out in the county.

Beaver creek today was approximately 7 feet from the highway bridge at Smiths Ferry. It is spread over several hundred feet on a low piece of ground nearby. Residents in both Smiths Ferry and Glasgow said the water had risen, but anticipated no danger.

Streams swollen by heavy rains flooded highways in several sections of the state, while sleet and fog covered northern Ohio.

The Blanchard river and its tributaries were reported to be in flood.

AUDITORS—NEW AND OLD

Shelton J. Overdorf, above, East Liverpool auditor for three terms, today succeeded John H. Irwin of East Palestine, below, as county auditor. Mr. Irwin, who has held the position for two four-year terms, retires with no plans for the immediate future.

OVERDORF TAKES POST AT LISBON

Local Republican Replaces J. H. Irwin Of Palestine

Special To The Review.

LISBON, March 13.—Shelton J. Overdorf, Republican, former East Liverpool city auditor, who defeated Ross Tisher in a sweeping Republican victory at the polls last November, today took office as Columbiana county auditor to succeed John H. Irwin of East Palestine.

With him at his desk on the opening day of a four-year term is his fellow Republican predecessor, getting Mr. Overdorf acquainted with his staff and explaining the intricacies of his duties.

"This will be Mr. Irwin's last day in the office. 'I have made no plans for the future,' he said, but revealed he probably would 'take it easy' for a few days at least.

The new auditor said no changes would be made in the present staff until April 1, but said he expected to name his complete staff within a week. Only a few changes are to be made, he has intimated.

This is Mr. Overdorf's first county office. He will serve until March, 1943. He was serving in his eighth year as city auditor and clerk of the East Liverpool township board of trustees when he resigned last week to take his new office.

He served two two-year terms and then was reelected when the office was changed to a four-year term.

A. J. Biram, East End grocer, appointed by Mayor Lee Copeland to complete his unexpired term, will serve until the fall election, Nov. 7.

Mr. Biram reported for duties in city hall today.

Mr. Irwin served two four-year terms as county auditor, having entered office in March, 1931. During his incumbency taxes in the city hall today.

SEWER JOB SCHEDULE SENT TO WASHINGTON

Carpenter's Run Approval Expected In 30 Days

City Engineer Howard C. Heary received word Saturday afternoon from the Akron district office of the WPA that a supplemental schedule of the Carpenter's Run sewer project had been transmitted to Washington by the regional office for review and approval.

Mr. Heary expects word from Washington in about 30 days barring an unforeseen holdup.

City council recently approved a resolution to issue $5,100 in bonds to assure completion of the sewer project.

The action followed the guarantee from WPA authorities at Washington of an additional $103,565 federal grant if the city would provide its share.

Under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce the original sewer project was set up for $322,000. Workmen, however, ran into unexpected difficulties, including floods, hard rains and unyielding rock, and the fund was exhausted before the work could be completed.

WHEELER URGES FISCAL STUDIES FOR ECONOMIES

Suggests Special Congress Committees To Effect Savings, Efficiency

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana suggested today that special congressional committees be created to study government fiscal and administrative policies with a view to promoting economy and efficiency.

"We as Democrats or Progressives must admit that there is a lack of confidence on the part of business, both big and little," said Wheeler. "It is caused partly by threats of war in Europe and the situation in the Orient and partly by international conditions.

"Unless the liberal forces of the country recognize the facts and seek to regain the confidence of the people, we will be supplanted by a reactionary Republican administration in 1940."

Placed With Congress

In an interview, Wheeler voiced belief that congress should "find out for itself how much money is necessary to cover the needs of the unemployed under a coordinated, well-administered agency."

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt discussed with Democratic leaders of congress how much additional money would be needed to operate WPA until July 1.

The leaders told newsmen afterward the President would send a message to congress tomorrow on the subject. White House officials had said earlier it was problematical whether it would be completed by then.

Asked whether the message would request the full $150,000,000 which congress cut from the President's original $375,000,000 request in January, Speaker Bankhead, replied:

"You'll have to wait and see."

Others present at the conference were Vice President Garner, Sen. Barkley, the majority leader, and Rep. Rayburn, the house majority leader.

The President's stand already is encountering criticism from congressional economy advocates, including Chairman Harrison (D) of Mississippi of the senate finance committee.

Retain Fundamentals

Discussing the administration's program to encourage business, Wheeler said there is no need to repeal the "fundamental reforms" of recent years.

But he added that "waste and extravagance" are apparent in government administration. He suggested that efficiency could be increased and money could be saved if congress would set up committees to "get all the facts" about federal operations between now and 1940.

Wheeler endorsed a bill by Sen. Byrnes (D) of South Carolina, for a new department of public works to take over the WPA and other existing relief agencies.

Sen. Barkley of Kentucky, promised right-of-way for the bill on the senate floor, but did not take a stand for or against it.

Friends of Sen. McNary (D) of Oregon, the minority leader, reported he opposed setting up a new federal department.

Harrison Against Grant

Sen. Harrison, in announcing his opposition to an extra $150,000,000 relief appropriation, said:

"The sentiment in congress is stronger now than ever before for economy."

Harrison declared that congress had "laid down the pattern" for economy in whittling Mr. Roosevelt's $375,000,000 relief request by $150,000,000 earlier this year. The legislators have been "very lenient" in appropriating for relief, he added, and existing funds should be spread out.

Sen. Taft (R) of Ohio said treasury figures showed there was "no justification" for a supplemental relief appropriation of more than about $70,000,000. Such an allotment he declared, would necessitate no reduction in relief rolls, a point on which administration officials have disagreed.

WANDERING MOUNTAIN SLOWS PACE TO CRAWL

By The Associated Press.

GILROY, Calif., March 13.—The moving earth mass which for a week slid ominously toward the main coastal highway near here appeared today to have slowed down to a mere crawl.

Belief that the rock and tree-crusted slide, after advancing more than a mile and three-quarters in six days, would halt short of the highway was expressed by Thomas Joyce of Salinas, district superintendent of state highways, after an inspection tour.

VATICAN DIGNITARIES CARRY PIUS XII TO CORONATION IN ST. PETER'S

Pontiff Grooms Envoys Of 41 Nations After His Coronation

Throng Estimated At 500,000 Jams St. Peter's To See Solemn Ceremonies When 262nd Pope Receives Jeweled Crown As Ruler Of Catholics

By The Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, March 13.—Pope Pius XII opened his old summer estate in the Alban hills today to the envoys of 41 nations who saw him crowned with brilliant pomp and stately ceremony in St. Peter's yesterday.

Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to London and the first official United States representative to attend a papal coronation since 1846, was scheduled to have a separate audience with the pontiff to present Mrs. Kennedy and eight of their children.

Diplomats, prelates and princes were among the 500,000 or so persons who watched the resplendent scenes of religious pageantry and enthusiasm in the vast mother church of Catholicism when the great, golden, jewel-encrusted tiara was placed on the head of the 262nd Pope, a Pope of peace.

The envoys were invited to be guests of the new pontiff's secretary of state, Cardinal Magliano, for a tour of the 100-acre lake-side papal estate at Castel Gandolfo and tea in the 310-year-old summer palace.

Scores of ordinary folk nursed bruises and rested overstrained nerves from the four-hour coronation ceremony and the crush when thousands rushed out from the basilica to see the actual coronation, which took place on a St. Peter's balcony for the first time in almost a century.

It was estimated conservatively that 60,000 persons jammed themselves to near-suffocation within St. Peter's. They had packed it from early morning to an hour before the ceremony began at 9 a. m. Thousands sat or stood for six hours.

Outside in the great square a throng estimated at 350,000 to 500,000 swarmed until it overflowed the 14 acres of the plaza, bounded by the famous elliptical colonnades.

Procession Is Thrilling

Inside the church were wondrous scenes of brilliance. The appearance of the 63-year-old Pope, who was elected March 2 to succeed the late Pius XI, thrilled many as he was borne on a portable chair in long, slow, solemn procession into the basilica.

Crimson draperies from the ceiling to the floor softened the richly-encrusted walls and monumental statuary of saints and popes. dignitaries—all these and more added color to the scene.

Ecclesiastic cheers, greeted the pontiff, whose face was immobile as a mask. A pallor betrayed his emotion. His lips were set in a thin line and his eyes showed deep feeling at the acclamation, "Viva il Papa!"

Pierre Cardinal Gerlier, archbishop of Lyons, France, said: "The pontiff's face was a mask of suffering and death."

After a five-hour session in Madrid last night the defense council, headed by Mijaia, announced that with the six-day Communist uprising suppressed, the government would go ahead with "the plan drawn up before the rebellion."

Unconditional Surrender

That plan, border observers believed, would mean the end of the evil war by virtually unconditional surrender.

Border observers, however, were skeptical of the defense council's announcement that the Communist revolt against the peace plan finally had been suppressed. They pointed out that the same announcement had been made twice before and that after each bitter fighting continued in Madrid.

Dispatches from Burgos, Franco's capital, said Nationalist scouting planes flying over the republican capital reported a desperate battle still in progress yesterday. These reports said the Communists and Mijaia supporters seemed about evenly divided.

While Mijaia's men apparently had cleaned out the center of the city, the Communists were said to control an almost solid ring of fortified buildings in outlying sectors. Only on the southeast, these reports indicated, was there a break in the Communist cordon—a battle line within the 28-month-old defenses raised against the Nationalist siege.

2 Divisions Advance

It was impossible to determine what effect the internal fighting had had on Republican troops' disposition in the one-fourth of continental Spain still unconquered by Franco. One unconfirmed report, however, said two full divisions—one Communist and the other loyal to Mijaia—were advancing on Madrid to join the fight.

Mijaia was known to have ordered troops, with tanks and artillery, out of the capital's defense line to support him in Madrid.

Dispatches from Madrid this morning said some 30,000 Communist soldiers from the Madrid area alone had been involved in the fight with Mijaia.

Forty persons were reported killed and more than 100 injured in a nationalist air raid yesterday at Guadalajara, 40 miles northeast of Madrid.

Hitler Confers With Ousted Premier As Spokesmen In Berlin Hint Intervention's Near In Freedom Row

Minority Germans' Activity Irks Government; Leader Of Separatists Declares 'Hitler Protects Us'

TROOP MOVES TERMED 'PARADE PREPARATION' AFTER EARLIER CLASH

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 13.—Chancellor Hitler received Dr. Joseph Tiso, ousted Slovak premier, for an "extended" conference today amid acknowledgment by official sources that Germany would make some sort of intervention in the Czechoslovak situation.

Tiso, who was ousted from the premiership of autonomous Slovakia by the Prague central government Friday because of agitation for Slovak independence, arrived at Berlin's Tempelhof airdrome late this afternoon.

Nazi elite guard troops, with a band, accorded him honors usually extended to a premier in office. He was driven directly to the chancellery, where a propaganda ministry spokesman said he was received by Hitler for a lengthy conference.

The mildest form of German intervention in the situation would be diplomatic representations, but the possibility of "stronger action if necessary" also was mentioned by a foreign office spokesman.

The spokesman indicated that even if only a diplomatic step were taken, the language of a German note would be sharp and unequivocal.

Refuses To Elaborate

The spokesman would not commit himself to whether the desired result of German intervention would be an "independent" Slovakia.

On Wednesday, the spokesman said, Chancellor Hitler would appear at a big parade in Vienna, just 34 miles from Bratislava, the Slovak capital.

When asked whether not only army units but also detachments of SS and SA (Nazi uniformed guard units) were moving to the southeast, he replied affirmatively, but insisted they simply were enroute to participate in the Vienna parade.

He indicated that German officials were in constant touch with Italian officials, their partners in the Rome-Berlin axis.

He said also that nothing was known here about contentions made in Bratislava that a German emissary had made overtures to leaders of the Slovak separatist movement long before the present difficulties developed. He admitted, however, that because Bratislava and Vienna are close together there were frequent interchanges of views between Slovaks and Germans.

The controlled Nazi press used phrases like those employed in the September crisis, to describe what they called "brutal Czech terror" in Czechoslovakia.

Nazis Claim Brutality

The newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter, the leading Nazi party organ, spoke of "Czech outrages hostile to Germans" and other newspapers headlined dispatches thus: "Brutal Czech attacks on Germans in Brunn," "Monstrous Czech Terror" and "German Nationals clubbed down."

Foreign office sources said week-end developments in Czechoslovakia reminded them of the "Benes system"—referring to former President Edouard Benes—and added that the fact that the Czech action in Slovakia "again has involved the remaining Germans there" was noted particularly here.

As a result, the possibility of new German intervention in Czechoslovakia "to establish order" became a moot question, especially after the reminder by Admiral Erich Raeder, chief of staff of the German navy, that greater Germany is the "protector" of all Germans on both sides of the frontier.

Admiral Raeder praised Germany's armed strength and declared that "Germany strikes quickly and hard."

DIONNE TO TAKE QUINS TO MEET KING, QUEEN

OTTAWA, Ontario, March 13.—(Canadian Press)—Le Droit, Ottawa French language newspaper, reported today that Olivia Dionne had accepted the invitation of the Ontario government to take his quintuplet daughters to Toronto May 22 to meet King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

The newspaper quoted Dionne as saying in a letter to Harry Nixon, Ontario provincial secretary:

"Mrs. Dionne and myself are pleased to accept your kind invitation."

The Ontario government had offered to send two special railway cars to take the Dionnes to appear before the king and queen at a provincial legislative assembly.

Trustees Deny Offering Job To Chicago Physicist

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., March 13.—Serious obstacles have developed to Dr. Arthur H. Compton's appointment as president of Ohio State university, it was learned today from usually reliable sources, as the university trustees formally confirmed reports of a Sunday conference on the subject with the Chicago university physicist.

"The presidency of the university was discussed but it was not formally offered to Mr. Compton," said trustees.

What caused the change in plan apparently agreed upon earlier by the trustees and Dr. Compton could not be learned authoritatively.

In 1927, Dr. Compton received the Nobel prize for his research and writings in the field of x-ray. Two years later, Ohio State university conferred upon him the degree of doctor of science.

Dr. Compton has been an instructor in physics at the University of Minnesota and at one time headed the physics department at Washington university. A native Ohioan, he attended Wooster college at Wooster, O., before studying at Princeton, Cambridge and Oxford universities.

Dr. William McPherson, dean of the Ohio State university graduate school for 25 years, has been acting president of Ohio State since the retirement of Dr. Rightmire.

PASTOR STATES SINS FORGIVEN THROUGH CHRIST

Rev. Kindsvatter Declares Christians Believe Life Has Oneness In God

Redemption from sin can be traced throughout the long history of mankind, Rev. Kindsvatter told his congregation at St. John's Lutheran church Sunday morning in his sermon, "Is Forgiveness Possible?"

"There are those who say that it is impossible for sin to be forgiven; that where the tree falls, there will it lie; that whatever a man sows, that will he also reap," he declared. "These maintain that sin is personal and that personalities are not things."

He pointed out that when Christians today partake of the elements of sacrifice in Holy Communion, they pray, "Oh Christ, Thou Lamb of God that takest away our sins." "Some believe the atonement theory in which the individual is considered as a marble in a bag of marbles," Rev. Kindsvatter said. "Others are devotees of the absorption theory in which the individual is considered as a wave of the sea that is sucked into the whole."

"Also there is the interpenetrative theory which the Christian accepts, which holds that the individual permeates, influences and affects those about him. This theory makes for the belief in the solidarity of life in which every thought and act of the individual influences the lives of others."

"Such a relationship reveals in a degree the love of God for his children on earth. The death of Christ was men and women to a oneness with the Father and proves that sins are and can be forgiven."

Rev. Canfield Says Christ Lightens Burden

Human burdens may be lightened materially by allowing Jesus Christ to dominate individual lives, Rev. Clyde Canfield, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, said in his sermon on "The Lighter Yoke" Sunday morning.

"Jesus was speaking to the people of His day when he suggested they come to Him and take upon themselves His yoke," he said. "They were burdened with the heavy yoke of Roman oppression and of their own religion. For all these heavy yokes Jesus suggested they substitute His yoke, for he said, 'It is light and will give rest to your souls.'"

"There are those today who feel that the demands of the church are burdensome. These should remember Christ's statement, 'If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments.' Believing this, men and women will become the stewards of God, having the love of Christ in their hearts, their service to the church will be acts of love in appreciation of what He has done for them."

Rev. Clark Says All May Harmonize With God

To have harmony with the spirit of God is possible for all by showing humility and consecration which make for sanctification, Rev. James Clark, retired pastor of the Island Creek church, told members of the congregation of the First Presbyterian church Sunday night.

"There are barriers between common people and royalty in this world," he said, "but God makes it possible for such close fellowship with Him that all may walk with Him."

"This harmony of spirit cannot be obtained by being doubtful and cynical of God's word. Even when Christ was upon the earth, some looked upon him as a mere man and not as the Son of God."

"Until members of the church manifest their fellowship with God they cannot influence those about them. They cannot do anything they want to do on the Lord's day and have such an effect. Men must walk circumspectly if others are to note their consecration and sanctification."

Prayer Can Conquer Dark Hour, Pastor Says

There are times when all suffer in the dark hour of midnight, but all can sing as did Paul and Silas, Rev. William Dwight Heaston, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, told his congregation Sunday morning in his sermon on "Songs in the Night."

He related the experience of Paul and Silas when they were thrown into the Philippian prison, and how, after praying, they were able to sing songs of praise to God.

"When people pray earnestly, even though they are suffering a 'midnight experience,' they will be able to sing," he declared, "for something always happens as the result of sincere prayer."

Rev. Hanks Declares Sin Will Be Punished

Rev. C. C. Hanks, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, Sunday night, told his congregation that sin, persisted in with no evidence of repentance, eventually will be punished without end in his sermon "The Eternal Punishment of the Wicked."

"In his earthly ministry, Jesus said much more about Hell, than he did about Heaven," he said. "He made it plain that Hell was everlasting and that there was an impassable gulf between Heaven and Hell. Prayers and petitions made in Hell are not heard in Heaven."

At the morning service Rev. Hanks read reports showing that the Nazarene church now has 3,000 ministers and 1,300 licensed ministers, with 2,527 churches and 153,700 members.

He stated that there were 307,000 now enrolled in Sunday schools, with an average attendance of 151,345, and that there were 42,943 missionary societies.

Rev. C. C. Hanks, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, Sunday night, told his congregation that sin, persisted in with no evidence of repentance, eventually will be punished without end in his sermon "The Eternal Punishment of the Wicked."

"In his earthly ministry, Jesus said much more about Hell, than he did about Heaven," he said. "He made it plain that Hell was everlasting and that there was an impassable gulf between Heaven and Hell. Prayers and petitions made in Hell are not heard in Heaven."

At the morning service Rev. Hanks read reports showing that the Nazarene church now has 3,000 ministers and 1,300 licensed ministers, with 2,527 churches and 153,700 members.

He stated that there were 307,000 now enrolled in Sunday schools, with an average attendance of 151,345, and that there were 42,943 missionary societies.

The Sunlit Road

By TOM T. JONES

William J. Curry of Andrews pl. is one of the dwindling number of East Liverpool persons who recall the sinking of the Ohio river excursion steamer, Scioto, near Mingo Junction July 4, 1932, nearly 67 years ago. In this disaster scores of East Liverpool and Wellsville persons lost their lives.

Mr. Curry and the late Atwood Thomas narrowly missed being passengers on the ill-fated craft and might have been victims of the disaster. They abandoned their plans of joining the excursionists when they saw the crowded condition of the boat before it pulled away from the Broadway wharf on that Independence day morning.

After the boat started down the river, Mr. Curry and his companion walked to a grove near Patterson field where a holiday picnic was being held. In the afternoon they were attracted by the Katie Stockdale, another steamer, on its way up the river and they decided to take the boat to Pittsburgh.

In Pittsburgh the following morning they read newspaper accounts of the sinking of the Scioto and boarded the first train available for Mingo Junction. They saw searching parties removing bodies of the victims from the sunken craft. Mr. Curry learned that his brother-in-law, Wilson Paul, a plasterer, had been aboard the boat and was among the missing. Mr. Thomas returned to East Liverpool that night but Mr. Curry remained on the scene.

Hearing that a number of bodies had been picked up at Wheeling, he hurried to the down river city. It was there that he finally located the body of Mr. Paul, which he arranged to be returned to East Liverpool. Quick interment of the victims of the disaster was necessary and burials of many were made in the old Fifth st. Union cemetery, the site of the present City hospital. A memorial service for victims of the tragedy was conducted by Rev. John Williams, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, on the following Sunday.

Mr. Curry was engaged in the manufacture of electric porcelain supplies here for many years. He started in the old R. Thomas & Sons plant. He remembers John Thomas, and son, Richard Thomas, pioneers in the concern, which is now operating in Lisbon after abandoning the East Liverpool works.

Ohio Roundup At The Capitol Republicans To Hear Bricker, Taft At Rally Of Congressmen

They'll Speak At Second Of A Series Of 'Republicans On Parade' Meetings In April; Brown Gets Post On Special Committee To Study Deficit

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Two Ohioans often mentioned as Republican presidential candidates are expected to go on parade before Republican members of congress next month.

Rep. Brown (R) of Ohio said Sen. Taft had already accepted an invitation to speak early in April at the second in a series of programs for "Republicans On The March" and Gov. John W. Bricker had been asked to attend. Governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts and Vandenberg of Rhode Island also will be invited to speak at the same time.

The first banquet will be held March 15. During the series, Thomas Dewey, the New York City prosecutor, Sen. Vandenberg (R) of Michigan and a score of other leading Republicans will be asked to appear.

Brown, a member of the program committee, was the fourth Ohio Republican to be selected on special committees. Rep. Marshall was chosen one of 11 minority members to study proposals for increasing the national debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000. Rep. Lewis was named on the group to study national defense and Rep. White on the congressional campaign committees.

Rep. Jenkins (R) of Ohio, dean of the Ohio Republican delegation, had a part in their selection and in obtaining major committee assignments for 10 of the 13 new members.

Marshall, planning to study the effects of deficits on public credit, said he wanted "to find how far we can go without breaking the market for government securities."

He argued that a return of good times might effect the government's credit, because banks now holding large amounts of government securities might want to replace them with private securities bringing a higher return.

Ohioans took a conspicuous spot in the debate over the government reorganization bill, with campaign methods in the state being injected into the argument.

Rep. Johnson (D) of Oklahoma said he was told most Republican candidates in Ohio in last year's election "simply outpromised their Democratic opponents."

"In some districts I was told our Republican friends promised more funds for WPA, higher wages for all, decidedly increased pensions for the old, more funds for youth and by all means balance the federal budget," Johnson said.

"Oh, you boys are to be congratulated on the debate over the government reorganization bill, with campaign methods in the state being injected into the argument."

NOVELIST BROMFIELD FINDS EUROPE 'DYING'

COLUMBUS, O., March 13.—Fifteen years in Europe convinced novelist Louis Bromfield that it was a "dying country" that could not be saved either by peace or war.

Bromfield, a former newspaperman now living near Mansfield, made the expression yesterday at the annual meeting here of Ohio member editors of the Associated Press, who also heard Brian Bell, Associated Press Washington bureau chief, and Paul Bellamy, Cleveland Plain Dealer executive and Associated Press director.

The editors named John G. Green of the Toledo Blade as president; selected Dave Bowman of the Cincinnati Times-Star and Robert E. Segal of the Chillicothe Scioto-Gazette as vice presidents, and re-elected F. J. Startzel, chief of the Associated Press Ohio staff, as secretary.

Lion And Lamb

LOUISBURG, N. C.—A cat gave birth to two kittens in a hollow oak on L. C. May's farm recently and a few days later a stray dog selected the same place to bring eight pups into the world.

Both cat and dog are raising their broods in the tree—without argument.

Rattling The Bones

INDIANAPOLIS.—A skeleton picketing force started shoppers on downtown streets here.

Two pickets of the United Cemetery Workers union (CIO) put on skull-and-bones hallowe'en suits to picket offices of directors of the Crown Hill Cemetery association.

The union also has been picketing the cemetery in a demand for better working conditions.

The skeleton-costumed pickets carried cards which said: "I can't rest my bones in Crown Hill."

Timely Dousing

PHILIPSBURG, Kas.—The presence of mind of seven-year-old Lydia Alice Demotte probably saved the life of her cousin, Mary Lynn Graves, seven.

The two little girls were standing in front of a stove. Mary Lynn's coat caught on fire.

"Stand real still," Lydia Alice told her, then dashed to the kitchen for a pan of water. She made three trips before the fire was put out.

To Relieve BABY'S HEAD COLD Misery

DO THIS: Massage his throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him into bed. Next, put a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; place a newspaper or sheet over the child's head like a tent, covering the bowl too, so the medicated vapors can be inhaled for several minutes. This treatment loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Long after he relaxes into peaceful sleep, VapoRub's poultice-and-vapor action is still bringing relief—and you can get a good night's rest too.

S. W. TIDD TAKEN AT COLUMBIANA

Former-Mayor Was Active In County, Town Affairs

Special To The Review.
COLUMBIANA, March 13.—Samuel W. Tidd, 79, pioneer merchant, former mayor and councilman and civic leader here for more than 50 years, died in his home in South Main st. Sunday at 11:50 a. m. following a week's illness resulting from a stroke of paralysis. He had been in poor health for several years.

Mr. Tidd was born in Independence, Mo., Jan. 15, 1860, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Tidd. He came to Columbiana in his boyhood and was married to Miss Cynthia Harmon, Oct. 10, 1879. His wife died about eight years ago, two years after she and Mr. Tidd celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

He established a department store in Columbiana more than 50 years ago, remaining active in the business until a few months ago. In his younger days he was a salesman for the Minifield Manufacturing Co. of Warren, the Canton Buggy Co. and the Columbiana Pump Co.

Active in Democratic party affairs, Mr. Tidd served as mayor of the village and also as a councilman and a member of the board of education for several terms. He also was on the visiting board of the Fairmount Children's home for some time, and was a Democratic committeeman for many years.

Mr. Tidd was a charter member of the Knights of Pythias lodge, becoming affiliated with the organization for more than 50 years. He was a member of Allen lodge, Masons, the Eastern Star and the Grotto in Youngstown. He was a director of the Union Banking Co. and a member of the Grace Reformed church.

He leaves three sons, Dr. Arthur C. Tidd of Youngstown and Tracy J. Tidd and Samuel E. Tidd, both of Columbiana, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in the Fry funeral home Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. in charge of Rev. Walter R. Gobrecht, pastor of the Grace Reformed church. Burial will be made in the Columbiana cemetery. The family will receive friends at the Fry home tonight from 7 to 9:30.

REV. ELDER D. MOORE, RETIRED PASTOR, DIES

Former Resident Of City, 85, Stricken In Chicago

Rev. Elder Denny Moore, 85, retired Presbyterian minister and a former resident of East Liverpool, died in his home in Chicago Sunday, according to word received by local friends today.

Rev. Moore was pastor of a suburban church in Chicago until about three years ago when he retired to make his home with his daughter, Miss Margaret Moore.

He spent many years of his life in East Liverpool as a bookkeeper in the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles Co. office. He organized and was teacher of the Bible class bearing his name in the First Presbyterian church and also was a member of the session for many years.

Mrs. Moore died in 1921. Shortly thereafter he left East Liverpool for Chicago where he studied in the Moody Bible Institute and then entered upon a ministerial career.

Besides his daughter, Margaret, he leaves three other daughters, Mrs. Samuel C. Moore and Mrs. Anna Fisher in Chicago and Mrs. Frances Moore who is engaged in Y. W. C. A. work at Worcester, Mass.

The body will arrive here Wednesday morning and will be laid to rest in Riverview cemetery.

BEAVER MAN'S DEATH STARTS INVESTIGATION

By The Associated Press.
ROCHESTER, Pa., March 13.—Frank Cutrona, 65-year-old wholesale beer dealer, was found dead today in his automobile in front of his establishment, a bullet wound through the heart.

State Motor Policemen Robert O. McKellar and M. J. Sedlock said the gun which apparently fired the fatal shot, was beside the body and that they were making paraffin tests to determine if the beer man shot himself.

The officers also said they and Assistant Police Chief Frank Craig of Rochester, were investigating a theory Cutrona might have been a fourth victim of a Beaver valley gang war which broke out two years ago.

FIREMEN AT CHESTER TO NAME CAR QUEEN

Most Popular Girl To Get Trip To New York Fair

The Chester volunteer fire department will select some Chester girl as queen of the new squad car in a contest to begin March 20. The winner is to receive a free trip by plane or train to the New York World's fair and have the honor of being the first girl to ride in the new squad car, when it is shown in Chester during a celebration late in April.

The new squad car of the department is now under construction at the McKay body works in Grove City, Pa.

Contestants are to register to night from 7 to 9 at the office of Mayor John S. Duffy and each night until March 20. Winners are to be selected by popular vote of Chester residents.

Another activity of the firemen will be a roller skating party Friday night at Virginia Gardens in Rock Springs park. A floorshow will be a feature. The committee in charge is Lester Kirschner, Edward Huff, Charles Reed and DeMar Miller.

STORMS

utaries in Putnam county were reported on the wildest rampage in recent years, with a flood crest expected about noon, Route 224 at the Hancock-Putnam county line was beneath five feet of water, and many secondary county roads were closed.

The Auglaize river went over a recently completed flood wall flooding basements of stores and homes at Wapakoneta. Basements of about 3,000 homes at Marion also were reported flooded by a 2.64 inch rainfall, and roads in that vicinity were covered by four and five feet of water.

Roads leading from Canton to Alliance, Dover and Bolivar also were under four and five feet of water, and state route 226 in Ashland county near Big Prairie was two feet under.

Sheriff L. M. Davis of Mercer county ordered school bus service suspended in Washington and Liberty townships until highways are clear of water.

Toledo Power Shut Off
Sleet-covered power lines snapped at Toledo causing a power shut-off of two hours in some sections of the city. Lyons, Metamora, and Fayette in Fulton county also were without power for two hours.

Walter J. Wauson, telephone exchange manager, estimated damage of $5,000 to telephone lines in Fulton county.

The sewage treatment plant and part of the telephone system were crippled at Van Wert, where 2.79 inches of rain flooded cellars to a depth of four feet.

The Ohio Associated Telephone Company reported that more than 300 poles in northern Williams county were down as a result of the sleet.

The state highway patrol said roads were flooded throughout north-central and northwestern Ohio, and that water had blocked all highways leading south from Toledo.

Snow continued today in the eastern states, but rain and sleet had ceased in the middle west. Temperatures were rising in the plains states and the Rocky mountain area.

Snow fell today in Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Maine and New York.

It had reached a depth of 11.4 inches in Boston.

New York Has Snow
About three inches of snow fell in New York City and three deaths were attributed to weather conditions there. Two died in upstate New York, where snow and ice covered the highways of the western and central portions. The heavy snowfall was being driven by a high wind in the upper central section. Temperatures were slightly below freezing.

The snowstorm increased in fury today in central Vermont and New Hampshire, where from two to four inches had fallen.

The storm claimed six deaths in New Jersey and traffic was hampered throughout the state. Snow fell in western Pennsylvania after heavy, chilling rains. Light snow and sleet covered eastern Pennsylvania, highways were icy and travel was perilous.

Further south in the Maryland area, cool, cloudy weather followed week-end rains and snow flurries. Two pedestrians were killed by autos on ice-glazed roads.

Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Iowa suffered heaviest in the middle west, but conditions improved today.

ROOSEVELT MAY GIVE LABOR PLAN

Newspaper Says President Has 'Stick' Over Parley

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 13.—Negotiations for the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations resume today their efforts to end the four-year civil war splitting labor's ranks.

Two conferences last week, one in Washington and one here, left the two committees divided on a program of peace, but true-minded labor leaders were hopeful that pressure from President Roosevelt and rank-and-file union members would force an armistice.

In a new plea for unity, Secretary of Labor Perkins issued a statement in Washington last night asking employers, workers and union officials to "do everything they can in a constructive way to advance the chances for successful negotiations."

"American workers are anxious for peace, between the A. F. L. and the C. I. O. and hope that nothing will be done which endangers carrying the negotiations to a successful conclusion," her statement said.

The New York Times says that when the conferees met Tuesday the President emulated Teddy Roosevelt and used a "big stick" in the form of a distinct threat that peace must be made if the labor movement is to escape something worse than war.

If, however, it appears at the end that the conferees are doomed to collapse, the Times says the President probably will step in with a proposal of his own.

What that something was Mr. Roosevelt did not indicate, but the Times says the President's attitude has spurred the labor peace talks. Some of those at last week's meeting gained the impression, the paper adds, that Mr. Roosevelt would give the conferees as much time and as much leeway as possible.

A Rumor Grew And Grew

THE rumor that Britain is playing off Germany against Russia so Communism and Nazism will eat each other up like Kilkenny cats has reached a high place. Joseph Stalin has made it the keystone of Soviet Russia's foreign policy.

He says Russia will not fall into the trap. There is no basis of war between Russia and Germany, he declares. The Soviet government will not be fooled by the canard that Germany's eastward expansion includes the Ukraine.

Russia, asserts Stalin, will do what is best for Russia, and that does not include fighting Germany. He goes further, to hint at the possibility of "Rap-prochement" with Germany—an interesting possibility but not a likely one.

This is the way foreign policy is made—for popular consumption. All indications are that the canard of the so-called "Cliveden set plot" to save British bacon by "appeasing" Germany and waiting for it to clash with the Soviet was inspired in the first instance by persons with Communist leanings to discredit a conservative government. Yet, what apparently was a political trick finds its place in an official statement of Russian foreign policy.

The notion that Great Britain, with the connivance of France and the United States, could force Germany and Russia to destroy each other against their will is preposterous. It always was. Joseph Stalin, however, must take it seriously. After all, what would a dictatorship be without some deep plot afoot to discover? As far as that's concerned, what would the United States do without enemies threatening it from without and within?

Bad Taste

WOULD you, Mr. Citizen, like to see your city fire engine go thundering past with a big banner on its side reading, "After the first stop at Joe's for a hamburger?"

Or, painted on your city streets, "School, slow down—Eat Curries for breakfast to give you strength?"

Or, painted on a police squad car, "East Liverpool policemen wear Bunny Snug Athletic Underwear?"

Or, printed on the bottom of your water statement, "Drink Belcher Beer, made with East Liverpool city water?"

Such things have become possible, nay, become fact in East Liverpool.

Through the kind offices of a soft drink manufacturer, the city has been presented with a set of "novelty" crosswalk markers and has had them installed in the Diamond.

Every little marker, of course, bears the command to drink the product of the donor.

Through the kind offices of the citizens of East Liverpool, owners of this valuable and hitherto unexploited advertising space, a brand of soda-pop is expected perhaps to increase its sales volume in the city.

If such space is used to advertise products or services of private businesses, it ought to produce much needed revenue for the city treasurer and be sold to the highest bidder.

But we believe its use at all is in very bad taste.

Eyebrow Lifters

EYEBROW lifters had a busy weekend with the proposal of a five-year plan to settle Europe's pressing problems.

Sir Samuel Hoare, who made the proposal, probably was prepared for a cool reception. It may have suited him exactly.

It is part of his government's theory that the populations of aggressor governments do not welcome the prospect of war.

On one occasion, Prime Minister Chamberlain himself has said that what populations think is as important as what their leaders think.

Sir Samuel's proposal was ignored by the leaders, but insofar as it got attention among the people of Europe it had effect. War is not necessarily the fate of Europe. Armament burdens are not inevitable. There can be peace if all governments want peace. An idea like that is hard to ignore, even in the countries whose leaders scoff at it.

Misdirected Loyalty

JAMES J. HINES, recently convicted of conspiracy to protect the policy racket in New York City, will continue to be a Tammany leader. His letter of resignation was greeted with shouts of "No! No!" The shouters were his friends, members of the district organization he ruled. Most of them were under obligation to him. It was a stirring testimonial to the qualities which made Hines a Tammany leader.

It also was a disturbing sign of personal loyalty being placed above loyalty to an ideal of public service. Tammany Hall has come upon lean days because its members were more interested in scratching one another's backs than in the abstract principle of good government.

If Hines' conviction stands on appeal, if he goes to prison, his resignation ultimately must be accepted. His henchmen could have given New York City voters a pleasant surprise by accepting it when it was first offered. They missed a chance to prove Tammany Hall isn't what its critics say it is.

French Journal Publishes Reported War Program Of Germany And Italy Against Britain And France

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

MR. HORE-BELISHA'S statement, in the house of commons to the effect that in case of war the British government would envisage sending 300,000 men to France sounds sensational, but is logical and inevitable should a general European war break out in which one or more continental powers contend with Britain and France.

Great Britain cannot defend herself on her own ground. The British isles are too small and too vulnerable to make any such program at all feasible.

If there should be war the best thing that Britain could do and the lives would be to move as many as possible to the battle line as quickly as possible and assure a quick and victorious outcome.

I am inclined to think that Mr. Hore-Belisha's statement—although a prognosis of fact—was intended again as a warning to the Nazi and Fascist governments.

For there is not the slightest doubt that these governments, following the incredible capitulation at Munich, had outlined a grandiose program for 1939.

Whether this program has been abandoned or modified is, of course, a matter for speculation.

But the "Journal des Debats" presumes to know what the program of the axis powers is, or was. A sensational article appeared in that paper this week. Its publication is the more significant because only a few days before the French woman journalist Genevieve Tabouis, in an article in "L'Oeuvre," had revealed in more vague terms what is now precisely stated in the "Journal des Debats."

MADMOISELLE Tabouis's article brought her into sharp conflict with M. Bonnet, the French foreign minister, who had the article denied, naming Mademoiselle Tabouis and denouncing her in such unmeasured terms of reprobation that the press association protested. But "L'Oeuvre" is a left wing paper, hostile to the Daladier-Bonnet policy.

The "Journal des Debats" cannot be so described. It is generally regarded as the organ of the Comité des Forges—the most powerful French industrial group. It has been pro-Bonnet, pro-appeasement and pro-Munich. The author of the article is a well known journalist, M. Bernus.

The "Journal des Debats" insists that it is in possession of documents of indisputable validity which set forth the plans adopted by the axis powers for 1939.

It says that the success of the plans depends on a surprise attack. Therefore, the "Journal des Debats" publishes them in the belief that the mere fact of their being known provided that they are taken seriously by the French and British governments, may act as a preventive measure against their being put into practice.

This plan of the axis powers consisted in the first line of creating all sorts of difficulties for the western democracies on as many fronts as possible.

The occupation of the Island of Hainan by Japan was one move in this campaign.

The Italian campaign against France is another. Under the plan Italy would enormously reinforce her troops in Libya, looking toward French Somaliland, and the agitation in Palestine and Syria would be pushed, if possible, to the point of revolution. Italian general mobilization would immediately follow.

JOINT action was envisaged for a date as nearly as possible following the end of the Spanish civil war. At the agreed-upon moment Italy would officially formulate claims in Africa and in Europe and these would be unequivocally backed by Hitler in a speech in which he would set forth German claims in the form of an ultimatum.

These would be accompanied by a lightning operation which, in the mind of Hitler, would bring immediate capitulation by the western powers. This operation would consist of a brusque attack against Holland and possibly Switzerland.

The German army would seize positions in these countries as "territorial pledges" under the pretense that the move was not for conquest but only a "provisional occupation" taken for purposes of "defense." (If this interpretation of what constitutes defense seems fantastic to us let us remember that the controlled German and Italian press has repeatedly defined "aggression" as resistance to just and right claims, with the axis powers determining unilaterally what claims are right and just.)

With German troops in Holland and possibly Switzerland threatening further action, Hitler would then list his demands and ask Britain and France to give immediate satisfaction.

THE "Journal des Debats" insists that it is necessary that Hitler should be warned immediately that his plans are known, his calculations are wrong, and the outcome of any such move will be catastrophe for Germany.

The "Journal des Debats" editorializes that the first gain will be made if Hitler knows that the benefit of surprise is lost, and it urges the governments to inform Hitler that they are aware of his intentions.

The article concludes with the words, "We are not in the habit of launching sensational information without proof, and we hope that this article will be taken seriously."

It is the belief of this column that the plan here envisaged exists. The Dutch and the Swiss have displayed the greatest apprehension in the last months. The Swiss borders are being fortified with a ring of steel. The tension in both countries has been enormous.

But it is also the belief of this column that the sullen resistance of the German public since Munich to any further adventures and the exceptional solidarity shown by the western world, have already given Hitler serious reasons to reconsider.

That the plan has been permanently abandoned, however, is not in the least likely. It will be actual again the moment the western democracies go to sleep.

And in this connection it is greatly to be hoped that congress will not indulge in any action which might at this time give comfort to the axis powers.

For the result of such a program as envisaged here would be either war or another capitulation. And the eventual end of this systematic aggrandizement will be, again, either war or general revolution. We ought either to repeat the neutrality act or let it stand as it is. But we certainly ought not to present to the world at this moment the spectacle of a nation divided on foreign policy. (Copyright, 1939, New York Tribune)

Happily Ever After

This is the fourth of 12 articles answering some of the questions most frequently asked by couples contemplating marriage.

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW

Associated Press Feature Writer WHEN high-school-age son comes home spluttering because his date prattled about movie stars all evening, he's putting himself on record as a lad who scorns companions of lesser intellect.

Says Dr. Oliver M. Butterfield, former minister turned marriage counselor: "Companionship in marriage is most important. And companionship depends largely on ability to share mental interests."

Dr. Butterfield can give plenty of examples to support his contention. There were the boy and girl who'd been running around together for two or three years. Everyone assumed they would marry. But finally the girl broke it off.

"He just doesn't talk at my level," she explained to her puzzled parents. "We go out to see friends, and he can't enter into the conversation. He never reads. I've tried to get him to read some of the lighter classics, but he gets tired of one half-way through."

WHAT kind of a husband would he have been? asks Dr. Butterfield.

Or take the southern couple, married 10 years ago. She was a pretty, blue-eyed blonde. He fell in love, married after a whirlwind courtship, and gradually woke up to the fact that his wife had the I.Q. of an elementary school child.

They're still married, but the husband finds his eight-year-old daughter a better companion than his wife. He can't talk to his wife about finance. She doesn't get the point of the movies they go to. She can't follow the simplest directions when he asks her to meet him in New York. He's now vice president of his firm, but he got there in spite of her, not with her help.

Their marriage is a ceremony on paper, not the satisfying companionship it was meant to be.

How can you judge mental equality? Dr. Butterfield disagrees with any expert who says a college graduate should marry a college graduate. He includes the one of equal educational background. Holder of several degrees himself, he contends a B.A. is no indication of mental ability.

HE tells a story to prove it. Mr. X never saw a college, but he took courses in night school because he thought they would help him to write better advertising copy. He read inordinately. He went to lectures. Not Mrs. X. Graduate of a leading woman's college, she never kept up academic interests after college. Mr. X turned into a person of far broader interests than his wife.

Can you determine whether the object of your affections is intellectually your equal? Yes, says Dr. Butterfield—provided there is time for sufficient acquaintance-ship before marriage.

Make it a point, he advises, to consult your best girl's opinion on subjects which interest you. Find out if she's alert, what she can talk about, what she likes to do with leisure time.

Best place of all to do this mental testing, he says, is a co-educational institution where boys and girls work together.

Liberals And Liberty

New Dealers Indicate They Work For Opposite Of Genuine Freedom

THERE has been a tendency on the part of new dealers to refer to themselves as "liberals," and to intimate that all who do not accept their program are reactionaries or Tories. This has been particularly true during recent months and raises the question, "Who is a liberal?"

One may best arrive at an understanding of what a liberal is by first determining what a liberal is not.

Certainly the new dealers will agree that the leadership in the totalitarian states is not liberal. In those countries, all power is vested for all practical purposes in the hands of one man. Instead of the state existing for the people, the people exist for the state.

Individual initiative is entirely suppressed, and the people are regimented completely. Fundamental liberties which are guaranteed in this country by the Constitution simply do not exist in nations dominated by dictators.

In the United States, freedom of religion is guaranteed to one and all. In contrast, one sees in Germany the persecution of the Jews, and attempts to control the Catholics and the Protestants. Freedom of speech, which includes the right to criticize governmental officials, is guaranteed by our bill of rights. In Russia, criticism of the government is punished by execution by a firing squad or by a fate which is even worse—exile to Siberia.

AMERICANS consider freedom of the press as one of the fundamental liberties. Where under dictatorship does one find this freedom? It simply does not exist, because a dictatorship cannot endure in a nation where the press is free to express itself without interference.

Recently, announcement was published in the newspapers to the effect that the Rotary clubs in Italy had disbanded. This organization, formed in 1919, has brought business and professional men together for discussion of problems of the day, and for the promotion of international goodwill. But, the dictator of Italy does not want to promote international goodwill. Nor does he dare to allow men to come together to discuss freely the current questions. Hence, the disbanding of the Rotary clubs.

Any person who calls himself a liberal in the United States, certainly must believe in these and other liberties which are guaranteed by our Constitution. Recognizing that in other countries these liberties have been destroyed by dictators, the American liberal ought then to agree that any governmental actions which threaten these liberties are not liberal actions.

But what is it that the new dealer who calls himself a "liberal" stands for? He stands for centralizing the powers of government in the hands of the officials at Washington. Furthermore, he stands for the concentration of this power in the hands of the chief executive.

ANYONE who is not blind to realities must recognize that every step taken to centralize governmental power in this country and every measure which delegates additional power to the President or his subordinates is a potential menace to liberty.

The prevalent tendency to set up administrative agencies exercising legislative, executive and judicial power, is another distinct threat to liberty, which, it is of interest to note, is receiving the wholehearted support of the self-styled "liberals."

The true liberal is one who not only expresses a belief in the fundamental American liberties, but who seeks to safeguard these liberties by opposing the extension of federal power and the increase in the authority of the chief executive and administrative agencies.

Road Use Estimated

CHARACTERISTICS of road use discovered in a preliminary survey by various states in cooperation with the U. S. bureau of public roads are as follows:

Automobiles show average mileage of 13,000 for the first year, declining each subsequent year to 8,700 miles the fifth year.

Inhabitants of small towns are the greatest highway users. City dwellers as a whole drive almost 2,000 miles a year more than rural inhabitants.

An Illusion

Damon Peruses Fan Magazines, Finds Hollywood Is Heaven On Earth, Its Subjects Gentlemen And Ladies

By DAMON RUNYON

WHILE reclining on a bed of pain the past week, we have been reading a lot of those publications known to the movie trade as fan magazines. They are devoted exclusively to the movies and to the people thereof, are uniformly well printed, neatly illustrated, and very interesting.

Our reading of these magazines has disclosed to us that we have been misinformed and misled to a startling degree about life among the inmates of Hollywood, the seat of the picture industry, and also about the characteristics of the inmates.

We may say we are in a state of indignation bordering on displeasure toward certain persons more or less responsible for giving us a picture of Hollywood, and its inmates.

Indeed, our attending physician, removing the thermometer from our mouth at the height of our indignation, took one glance at the tube and said unless someone had left a bonfire burning under the bed by mistake, an oxygen tent was indicated. He said we were in a bad way, according to the thermometer.

WE LEARN from the fan magazines that Hollywood is a place where all the ladies are home-loving bodies, devoted to their firebrands and their husbands, if any. All the gentlemen are regular fellows and he-men fond of all masculine pursuits.

We gather that the genus Heel, male or female, is wholly unknown within the confines of Hollywood, that conceit does not exist and that the inmates are as friendly and as easy to get along with as so many little kittens. Are we told they all love their mothers and fathers dearly, and in some cases their grandmothers and grandfathers. Their one ambition is to save their money against those rainy days that occasionally come along, even in California.

We get the impression that any inmate of Hollywood who thinks of evening as anything other than the time for communion with a good book is regarded as eccentric and even a little wild by fellow inmates. We draw from our reading of the fan magazines that all those inmates of Hollywood are geniuses in the art of acting. If they have sometimes come out any less than that in their pictures it was the fault of the story.

What makes us hot is that, depending on the narratives of persons we had a right to think knew something of Hollywood, we have been guilty of harboring unpleasant thoughts of the place and its people. We sometimes have permitted a hint of what we were thinking to creep into print—as for instance the suggestion that there might be bad actors in Hollywood.

WE CAN see now that we have been had, as the saying is. Until we read those fan magazines, we were accepting the information of wayfarers from the Pacific coast that there were bounders and cads and runabouts in Hollywood the same as everywhere else. Some of this information, mark you, came from persons who live right in Hollywood.

It is now our belief that they go around purposely spreading poisonous propaganda to keep down immigration to Hollywood. We can see from the fan magazines that Hollywood is heaven on earth populated by angels, and those guys out there are trying to preserve it for themselves.

We have the consolation that we are not alone in our gullibility. The press associations have been taken in, too, if we may judge from the dispatches that come out of Hollywood about divorce actions, and law suits to enforce the support of venerable relatives.

It is with no disparagement of reportorial accuracy that we say we no longer can believe stories like that. They are probably just part of the propaganda to keep the rest of us mortals out of that elysium described in the fan magazines.

OUR functions as a cash customer of the movies have been interfered with lately by germs. About the only new picture we have seen is Huckleberry Finn with Mickey Rooney playing the part of Huck. We suppose he makes as good a Huck as anybody that ever played the part, but every generation of cash customers has its own Huck.

We must say we never saw a screen Huck who quite fulfilled our idea of the book character though we think Jack Pickford in the silents did as well as any of them. He is long since dead. He was a grand boy actor but a tragic figure of a Hollywood which was not all the terrestrial paradise that it has since become, as we judge from the fan magazines. Listener Likes Company

By Truman Twill

A GOOD listener's popularity is assured.

All he needs to do is to keep his mouth shut and his ears and eyes open. Mankind will beat a path to his ear drums.

Strangers will buttonhole him on street corners to tell him about their troubles.

His friends will unburden their souls in his presence. He will hear every joke going the rounds, not once but dozens of times.

Casual acquaintances will trample one another for the privilege of pouring confidence into his ears.

He is the backbone of the radio industry, and without him politicians would have to go to work. He hears everything that's worth hearing, and 10 times as much that's not worth hearing.

He wins a reputation as an amiable spirit brimming over with the milk of human kindness. And all the time he's wondering what he ever did to deserve such a fate. His mother must have been frightened by a gramophone.

Perhaps it's because he has a kind face. His inability to think of anything to say may have something to do with it, too.

DEMOCRATS SEE HOUSE COHESION

Leaders Forecast No More Revolts This Term

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 13.—Encouraged by the straight party vote by which the government reorganization bill passed the house, Democratic leaders predicted today there would be no more revolts in their ranks of this session of congress.

Rep. Rayburn of Texas, the Democratic leader, and Rep. Bonland of Pennsylvania, the party whip, said they regarded the almost unanimous Democratic support of the controversial measure as an indication that Democrats no longer would join Republicans in rejecting important administration proposals. Only five Democrats voted against the bill.

Caucus Gets Credit
The leader attributed their newfound "cohesion" to a party caucus a month ago at which Speaker Bankhead, Rayburn and others pleaded for straight party votes and regular attendance of house sessions.

But Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, Republican house leader, said he could not see "that anything important has happened." Democratic successes the rest of this session would depend, he said, on whether President Roosevelt submitted "anything else controversial."

"Anyway," Martin added, "the organization bill was no test because it was a much different measure than the one we whipped last year. Some of the most important sections of the bill were eliminated this year."

Cox Pleases Rayburn
Rayburn voiced gratification that Rep. Cox (D) of Georgia, a frequent critic of administration policies last year, was a leader in the fight for the reorganization bill. Cox said, however, that his attitude toward that proposal had been governed solely by its merit.

"It does not necessarily indicate," he added, "that I'll surrender any honest conviction I might entertain on other proposed legislation."

hop of Lyon, France, was master of ceremonies.

After communion and at the conclusion of the mass, Cardinal Gier gave the holy father a white silk purse containing 25 coins "for a mass well sung."

Afterwards the solemn procession was re-formed and the bells of St. Peter's rang out to call the people of Rome to the coronation.

The Pope appeared on the balcony, the mitre was lifted from his head by Cardinal Canali and Cardinal Caccia-Dominioni put the tiara gently in its place. Then the Pope read the blessing and recited the papal absolution.

Kennedy Quotes Pope As Roosevelt Admirer

By The Associated Press.
VATICAN CITY, March 13.—Pope Pius XII was quoted today by Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to London, as expressing "great admiration for President Roosevelt because he always admired his stand for religion."

The Pope received Kennedy, who was President Roosevelt's personal representative of yesterday's coronation ceremony. Mrs. Kennedy and eight of the nine Kennedy children in a private audience.

"The Pope expressed gratitude to President Roosevelt for having sent a representative," Kennedy stated.

The ambassador said that the pontiff, who usually remains seated during audiences, rose to greet him, and when the children came in the holy father went to a table to set them rosaries, his gift to the family.

The Pope recalled his visit to the Kennedy home in Bronxville, N. Y., in 1936, the ambassador said. He added that the holy father remembered taking young Teddy Kennedy on his lap and recalled how the boy asked about the cross which hung from his neck.

Before concluding the audience, the Pope blessed the ambassador, his family, and aids who accompanied him.

He also sent his blessing to all American people.

Meanwhile Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia was in Naples and William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston expected to go there later today. George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago expected to leave for Naples within two or three days. The cardinals plan to sail on the Rex for New York Thursday.

INSURANCE MAN SLUGGED, ROBBED

Suspect Questioned In Theft Of $30 Cash, $12 Check

A local man was being held in jail here today under a suspicion charge pending a hearing Tuesday morning in the assault and robbery of William O. Weaver, insurance agent from Westerville, O., late Saturday night.

Mr. Weaver, questioned today by Chief of Police Hugh J. McDermott and City Solicitor Carroll P. Lynch, said he was robbed of about $30 in cash and a $12 check in a parking lot at the Dawson service station after being slugged on the jaw.

The Westerville man told authorities he had been drinking in a restaurant on East Sixth st. and went to the parking lot at the restaurant relative to some matter about a car. The attack and theft then occurred, he said.

The hearing was delayed until Tuesday to permit calling of witnesses.

Clarence Reed, East End Negro, charged with assault in an attack on Len Sherwood last week at the Horn Switch, pleaded guilty today before Municipal Judge Frank E. Grosshans and was put under $500 bond for his appearance in court next Monday.

Police reported Mr. Sherwood in serious condition from injuries received in the attack.

Police also are investigating the disappearance of a pocketbook, reported by a Chester woman, and another stolen car.

Anna McGaffick of 561 Louisiana ave., Chester, told police her pocketbook, containing about $57, was stolen from under her arm while she shopped in City Market here Saturday afternoon. A $50 bill was included in the missing money.

An automobile belonging to F. P. Faulk and Co. was taken from Smith st. Sunday afternoon. Another car belonging to the company and a machine owned by Charles Maloney were recovered over the week-end.

VETS PROPOSE WARD FOR WOODARD'S POST

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., March 13.—Although Warden J. C. Woodard of Ohio penitentiary is under a 30-day "disciplinary" suspension, a group of World War veterans proposed in a letter today to Gov. John W. Bricker that Major George M. Ward be named to succeed Woodard.

The veterans all are members of the American Legion in Columbus. Major Ward, 46, efficiency examiner for the state civil service commission, said the suggestion that he become warden was "a complete surprise."

No move has been made to oust Woodard, but Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood has indicated he may attempt to do so at the end of the suspension period.

GAS STOVE EXPLOSION AND FIRE FATAL FOR 3

By The Associated Press.
FARRELL, Pa., March 13.—Fire Chief James Davis said explosion of a gasoline stove apparently caused a fire which burned to death three men in their living quarters in the rear of the J. B. Roux feed mill.

Arthur J. Case, 29, his brother, Raymond L. Case, 21, and Robert T. Keyes, 24, all formerly of Ash-tabula, O., were believed to have been knocked unconscious by the blast yesterday and died in the resulting flames.

The men lived in a frame structure adjoining the feed mill where they were employed.

Fights Deportation, Claims To Have Spied For Army

By The Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, March 13.—Arrest of a former public relations officer at the March field army air base and proceedings to deport him to his native Germany were disclosed today.

Heinze Gerhardt Hartmann-Wrede, 30-year-old former soldier, has been held in the county jail here a week on a charge of illegal entry, pending a federal hearing.

The Los Angeles Examiner quoted him as claiming to have uncovered a German spy ring for the army intelligence and expressing fear of violent death if he is deported.

A one-time seaman, Hartmann-Wrede first came to the United States in 1923, applied for his first citizenship papers, but finally shipped for the Orient, the Examiner said.

Returning in 1936, he joined the army after applying again for first papers.

"At March field I was approached by a German fellow I had met in Shanghai," the Examiner quoted him as saying. "He reminded me I was still a German citizen and that I should help him get important information."

"Pretending to agree with him, I informed superior officers of his plans and was instructed to proceed. For months, I obtained full workings of this spy ring, obtaining copies of photographs and negatives they had in their possession—all of which I turned over to intelligence authorities."

The man claimed government agents were still investigating the information he had supplied them. "I'll never reach Germany alive if I am deported," he said.

4 REFORM BILLS WAIT ASSEMBLY

Tax, Parole Boards Rippers Ready For Legislature

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., March 13.—A busy week of revamping state departments is in prospect for the Ohio legislature, which reconvenes tonight.

Approved by committee and ready for a vote are four bills in Gov. John W. Bricker's reorganization program. They embrace the tax commission, parole board, adjutant general's office and conservation division.

Frank E. Whittemore, Republican majority leader in the senate, said that he hoped to obtain action this week on the tax commission and parole measures, which would put Republicans instead of Democrats in control.

The adjutant general bill, which would remove Gen. Emil F. Mark, head of the Ohio National guard, the assistant adjutant general and the assistant quartermaster general, is considered likely to encounter rough going in the house, where opposition is being organized by a Republican member. The measure won house committee approval only by a 7-5 vote.

The conservation bill was reported out of committee in the senate two weeks ago, but its sponsor, the League of Ohio Sportsmen, has been unable to agree with farm organizations on certain provisions.

A house committee will continue hearings this week on a bill proposing that the present two-member state civil service commission be abolished and replaced with a three-member group and a personnel administrator.

A special committee of senators and representatives, instructed to study relief conditions and prepare an 18-month program, planned to meet this afternoon and arrange for hearings in Columbus.

Introduction of the biennial appropriation bill is expected this week.

RUSSIAN SCIENCE MAKES CREDO OF DARWIN THEORY

'Ape Into Man' Teachings In Soviet Popularized For Benefit Of Workers

MOSCOW (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Foremost among the 19th century scientists honored in Soviet Russia is Charles Darwin, famous expounder of evolutionary theory.

The memory of the man who shocked theologians with his work on the origin of species is revered in the Soviet union and his writings are regarded with something of the awe elsewhere inspired by the scriptures.

Since the establishment of the Soviet regime, 1,700,000 copies of books by Darwin or by others propagating his teachings have been printed in the U. S. S. R.

Museum Honors Name A museum has been founded, bearing his name and dedicated to the population of Darwinism, which specializes in exhibits illustrating the evolution of living organisms. It has published various monographs on the origin of man.

In another institution, the biological museum, Soviet scientists have built up a number of exhibits devoted to "the role of labor in the process of transforming the ape into man." Other exhibits include a collection of freaks of nature presented as refutation of the metaphysical theories of preordained rational structure of living organisms.

Other scientific institutions, such as the institute of physiology of the all-union academy of sciences, are devoting much time to research on problems growing out of the Darwinian theory.

For the maintenance of the Pavlov laboratories of evolutionary physiology, leading in such researches, the Soviet government this year appropriated 2,400,000 rubles (nearly $475,000 at the official Russian rate for the ruble).

Darwin Theory Protected Darwin's teachings are not only propagated in the Soviet Union—they are protected.

Soviet scientists who stray from the straight Darwinian path promptly are taken to task.

The previous good reputation and distinguished career of Prof. L. S. Berg, for instance, did not save him from denunciation when he was disclosed as an "exponent of the anti-Darwinist theory of monogenesis."

It appeared that the professor

THIS HUSKY GANG OF STEEL-HELMETED MEN GUARDS OHIO PEN YARD

THIS husky bunch of steel-helmeted, armed men constitutes the special "yard guard" at Ohio penitentiary during the current investigation. Acting Warden W. F. Amrine says they are not "head hunters," but that's the title the convicts have hung on them. The smallest of the group weighs a mere 200 pounds. They are, front row, left to right: T. H. Graybe, weight 270; H. C. Blosser, 200; Tom Temple, 200; back row: A. J. Buzzard, 265; J. M. Carney, 245; A. J. Miller, 235, and C. E. Hayden, 265.

had written a monograph suggesting that the evolution of living organisms might arise from basic and preordained factors within the organisms, rather than from natural selection, survival of the fittest, and the like.

Berg was proclaimed unworthy of membership in the academy of sciences and was denounced as one whose "bourgeois" thinking tended to support "idealists and clergy."

Slow Death Physicians Helpless As Tumor Saps Boy's Life

By The Associated Press. PITTSBURGH, March 13 — A many-headed tumor slowly is crushing out the life of a two-year-old boy physicians say may hang on for a week or two but already has lived past his time.

The victim is little Harold Holt Jr., in whose withered body a growth clutches at the liver, the lungs and the one remaining kidney. Medical skill is helpless for no cure is known.

"The only saving grace is that the dying is painless," said the chief surgeon at Children's hospital. "There is nothing we can do. There is nothing any hospital in the world can do. The Wilms' tumor, as it is called, is always fatal."

Despite this the boy's father, a 26-year-old towboat crewman at nearby Monongahela, pleaded frantically for "somebody, somewhere, to help our boy."

Harold appeared normal in every respect last fall. Then signs of illness developed. The 27-year-old mother brought him to the hospital for examination. Discovery of the tumor followed.

Approximately one child in every 1,000 is born with such a growth, reported the Children's hospital surgeon.

"We don't know the cause and we can't detect the tumor until the child is at least two years old," commented the surgeon. "It is too late then. If we cut it out it grows up elsewhere. We cut out one of Harold's kidneys and a few weeks later it was invading other organs."

"X-ray treatments will halt the growth but as soon as you stop giving treatment it grows rapidly. You can't keep on giving X-ray treatments or you will harm the body."

Stamps In The News

By AP FEATURE SERVICE

VISITORS to the city of Panama drive out to Panama la Vieja (Old Panama) to see the ruins of the first city on the American continent. It was founded in 1519 when the conquistadores were building an empire for Spain. That was 46 years before they started St. Augustine, the earliest city in the United States.

Most striking ruin of Old Panama is the 90-foot tower of the Cathedral, which is pictured beside the Statue of Liberty on the 10-stamp set issued by the Republic of Panama to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the United States Constitution.

For a century after Pizarro discovered Peru, Old Panama was the New World's most important place. And here piled up the treasures of gold and silver enroute to Spain. The English and French pirates knew this.

In 1530, Friar Tomas de Berlanga, second Bishop of Panama, picked the cathedral's site on the highest spot in the city. A thatched-roof, wooden chapel was built and served five years until Architect Anton Garcia came from Spain to convert this into a larger wooden structure.

Fire Damage Repaired The frame cathedral was well worn by time, climate and quakes in 1621 when work started on the great stone church. Built with parishioners' donations, it was dedicated five years later and Panama was proud. Fire damaged it in 1644, but it was restored 15 years later to its former glory.

Sir Henry Morgan, the notorious buccaneer, attacked the city in 1671 and seized it after a furious battle. Fire started and most of Old Panama, including the lavish cathedral, was ruined. You can see it today almost as it looked when Sir Henry and his pirate crew pulled out.

Five of the new stamps are for regular postage, in 1, 2, 5, 12 and 15-centesimo values, and five for airmail, in 7, 8, 15 and 50-centesimo and 1-bolboa values. All are printed in four colors showing the Panama and American flags in red, white and blue, with the vignette in black and the frame a different color for each value. Only one design is used, but the airmail stamps are appropriately marked and incorporate a small plane at the top.

The mottoes, "Pro Mundi Beneficio" and "E Pluribus Unum," appear below the tower and statue respectively. Between the flags runs the inscription, "Homenaje (homage) a la Constitucion de los Estados Unidos de America." The Wright Bank Note Co. of Philadelphia did the printing.

A Baltimore dealer found a single sheet of 25 of the 2-cent value imperforated horizontally.

Mosque Of Djibouti Most of the Somalis under French control are strict Mohammedans, which explains why the exotic looking Mosque of Djibouti is pictured on seven of the recent Somali Coast stamps. Founded by the French in 1888, Djibouti is not so old as Obok, but is famed as the gateway to Ethiopia because the railway to Addis Ababa starts there. A striking group of three Somali warriors appears on six of the set.

BEAVER COURT OPENS MURDER TRIAL TODAY

Selection Of Jurors Begins For Trial Of Tolento

SPECIAL TO THE REVIEW. BEAVER, March 13.—Selection of the jury began here today for the trial of Louis Tolento, 40, of Rochester, in connection with the death of Tony Spitalo, Monaca beer-truck driver whose bullet-riddled body was found March 4, 1938, floating in the Ohio river near Merrill dam.

Virgil E. Reynolds, 30, of New Brighton also indicted for the murder, will not be tried until the conclusion of Tolento's trial. He was brought here from New York state, where he is serving a 20-year term for the slaying of Tony Massara, former Monaca resident.

Rudy Barich of Midland ave. Midland pleaded guilty here Saturday in court to charges of assault and battery and was ordered to pay the costs, pay a fine of $1 and serve three months in the county jail. Charges were preferred by Rudy Vonda, also of Midland.

FINGERNAILS TELL Manicurists Find Chewer Makes Poor Hubby

By The Associated Press. SALT LAKE CITY, March 13 — Salt Lake City manicurists came forth today with the results of their study of the fingernail-chewing male and concluded that marriage with him—well, just wasn't worth the risk.

The study, as published in a Salt Lake City newspaper, concluded: Don't trust a woman with a triangle-shaped fingernail.

Don't expect a man with long, slim fingernails to be a "good provider."

Don't marry a fingernail-chewer. The "fingernail-chewer," declared Clea Warr, is "high strung, nervous and irritable and generally speaking it's easier to get along with a buzz saw."

Fay Johnson said women with triangle-shaped nails can't keep secrets; men with long slender nails are gifted in artistic lines but "they just don't bring home the bacon."

$250,000 LABORATORY CONSUMED BY FLAMES

By The Associated Press. ALPINE, N. J., March 13 — Smoldering ashes heaped today the secret of Dr. John Clawson Burnett's experiments in medical electronics—15 years of scientific labor in the strange L-shaped, copper-colored laboratory erected on his 400-acre estate on the Hudson river palisades.

Flames believed caused by a short circuit swept the building yesterday. Fire officials estimated damage at $250,000, but neighbors who surveyed the charred ruins of intricate chemical apparatus and reportedly valuable photographic equipment, believed the loss might amount to millions.

Dr. Burnett and his wife, the former Cora Timken of the roller bearing manufacturing family were reported in California.

Dr. Burnett, 53, former osteopathic student and Newark sanitarium operator, built the estate 15 years ago shortly after his marriage to the heiress. She designed the laboratory, built without iron or steel which might have affected Dr. Burnett's secret experiments in electronic energy.

POLICE WEAR SPANGLES HADDONFIELD, N. J.—Traffic policemen here are bedecked with dazzling new spangles. A recent police order required the substitution of a white belt, generously studded with large, red reflectors in place of the white cape formerly worn while directing traffic at night.

TRUCKMEN STUDY BEAUTY SCRANTON, Pa.—Men in this Pennsylvania coal region are regarded as real he-men. But — a checkup of students at four beauty culture schools here has revealed that a number are men—including former miners, truck drivers, bartenders and even a policeman.

IN THE THEATERS

Cagney Roams The West

JAMES CAGNEY, the same self-assured and swaggering "hard guy" of his past roles, fans a six gun with lethal aim and fine disregard of danger in "The Oklahoma Kid," excellent movie at the Cermanic.

He still smiles, has a way with the wimmin, and saunters out of the most perilous situations in this sepia-tinted picture of the days of the settling of the Oklahoma territory.

It starts with the historic mass run of land-hungry pioneers who rushed into the territory at the crack of a gun at high noon one day in 1893. Among them are Donald Crisp as the Judge; his daughter, Rosemary Lane as Jane; Humphrey Bogart as the western bad man, Whip McCord, and others.

Cagney is the blacksheep of the Kincaid family, headed by Hugh Southern as the father, and the other brother, Ned Kincaid, played by Harvey Stephens. The elder Kincaid, his life dedicated to civilizing the territory, runs for mayor on a law and order platform.

This angers Bogart, who heads the lawless element of the frontier community, and he frames the senior Kincaid on a murder charge.

The picture is similar to "Jesse James," and is packed with western action, scenery, horsemanship and thrilling scenes, especially the land rush and Cagney's daring entry into Bogart's saloon "to get him."

There is a short of the versatile musicians of Clyde Lucas, an expose film showing the tricks of cheating gamblers, an interesting short on paintings, and a news-reel.—P.W.

Swordplay And Horseplay WITH Don Ameche as a singing, fighting, loving D'Artagnan and the Ritz Brothers as three phony Musketeers, the musical comedy version of Alexandre Dumas' "The Three Musketeers" opened at the State theater Saturday.

Ring songs, including "Song of the Musketeers," "My Lady" and "Volia," add to the excitement of D'Artagnan's stirring fight to save a throne.

In addition to Ameche and the wacky Ritz trio, the cast includes such popular favorites as Binnie Barnes, Gloria Stuart, Pauline Moore, Joseph Schildkraut, John Carradine, Lionel Atwill, Miles Mander, Douglas Dumbrille and John King.

The story opens with the appearance of the bona fide Athos, Porthos and Aramis at the Ritz's tavern. A riotous drinking bout toasting all the French monarchs from Louis I to Louis XIII results in the Musketeers winding up under the vicious slums and makes a heart-breaking plea for a better deal for the oppressed third of our population.

As the principal character in the drama, Miss Sidney portrays a romantic and courageous daughter of the slums, who decides that the time has come to do something about conditions. In her battle against the vested and smug interests she enlists her sweetheart, Erikson, who plays a wealthy but social-minded son of the upper classes.

OSTEOPATHIC SOCIETY PROTESTS STATE BILL

The Ohio Society of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, at a special meeting in Columbus, went on record Sunday as being opposed to two bills and favoring the enactment of two others now before the Ohio assembly.

The resolutions committee, of which Dr. C. M. Mayberry of East Liverpool is a member, protested senate bill 104 because "it takes away from the individual citizen his right to employ a physician and hospital of his choice," and house bill 568 unless it includes physicians and surgeons of the osteopathic school of practice.

It recommended passage of senate bill 28, which provides for premarital examination and house bill 512, which provides for representation on the state medical board of examiners for the osteopathic school of practice.

Senate bill 104 is designed to set up a system of health insurance from which the osteopaths claim their school of practice will be excluded.

Dr. John W. Hayes attended the session in company with Dr. Mayberry.

WAITING ASPECT SEEN IN MARKET

Leading Shares Shift After Uneven Business

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 13. — The stock market took on a watchful waiting attitude today and most leaders shifted over a slightly uneven route.

Lack of any real selling pressure, at the same time, tended to encourage recovery proponents. Dealings, quiet in the forenoon, failed to pick up momentum near the fourth hour.

Traders moved to cash profits here and there, brokers said pending congressional developments having to do with business aid and economy. It was learned, though, the President's plea for some $150,000,000 additional relief would not go to congress today.

Possibility of Germany's intervention in the Czechoslovak independence row was said to have caused only mild market apprehension. The business picture was without much change, but Wall Street was still hoping for a more than season spring upturn.

Bonds were irregular, with recently strong Latin-Americans suffering a setback. Commodities were also mixed, as were most European markets.

Shares inclined to slip included Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Anaconda, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber and Santa Fe.

Resistant were U. S. Steel, Boeing, consolidated Alcoa, Glenn Martin and Great Northern.

On the favorable side of the market were estimates automobile output in the second quarter would be around 1,150,000 units, or 10 percent above the first quarter and 80 percent over the same 1938 period.

Helpful also was the report of the department of commerce showing business in general during January and February exhibited substantial improvement over the same months last year.

Coppers were a bit wobbly most of the time as the scrap metal was reduced 1 of a cent a pound and doubts were expressed regarding forthcoming action of the Chilean senate on the copper export tax proposed in that country.

STEEL PRICE REAFFIRMED
PITTSBURGH, March 13 — Base prices on all steel products were reaffirmed for the second quarter today by Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp.

STRONGER TONE SEEN FOR STEEL INDUSTRY

Improvement Is Diversified And Moderate

By The Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, March 13.—Moderate but diversified improvement in steel buying is accompanied by noticeable betterment in sentiment among consumers, a market summary prepared by the magazine Steel said today. It also reported a stronger tone in scrap markets.

Recent gains in demand have affected steel making only slightly, the publication said, the national rate increasing one-half point to 56 1/2 percent of capacity last week. The rate a year ago was 30 percent.

The reaffirmation of prices on second quarter business announced several days ago was anticipated but it nevertheless will release some business held up pending the decision. Steel pointed out, however, an attempt probably would be made to institute higher quotations by the third quarter in the event conditions appear to warrant such a stand.

Factors affecting the present demand are seasonal activity in the automobile business, which reported an assembly increase of more than 5,000 units last week; spring track work by the railroads; moderate increases in operations of farm equipment manufacturers; and the prospect of greatly renewed activity in eastern shipbuilding yards.

Gradual improvement in plate demand was reported, although production continues slightly below 50 percent.

Last week's steelmaking rise was retarded by declines of 2 points to 48 percent at Pittsburgh, and 12 to 43 at Cincinnati. Increases included 1.5 to 58 at Chicago, 3 to 40 in eastern Pennsylvania, 3 to 74 at Wheeling, one to 52 at Cleveland, 5 to 65 in New England, 2.5 to 57.5 at St. Louis, and 5 to 52 at Youngstown. Unchanged were Buffalo at 32.5, Birmingham at 83, and Detroit at 76.

Scrap prices were stronger in most areas with new increases imminent. The scrap composite was unchanged at $14.96 and the finished steel composite steady at $56.50.

FORMER MIDLAND GRID COACH SERIOUSLY ILL

Special To The Review.
MIDLAND, Pa., March 13 — Wilbert Paul "Rusty" Lomond, high school coach here for 13 years until last fall when he went to Clairton, Pa. High school, is reported critically ill at the McKeesport, Pa., hospital.

Lomond, who developed outstanding grid teams at Midland, has been ill for several months. However, according to attending physicians, his condition now is considered serious. Lomond relinquished his Midland post to William Wushinske and succeeded George Woodman as coach at Clairton.

The Midland City Basketball league plans a program of three games Wednesday night, the proceeds of which will be used to help defray Lomond's medical expenses.

The next meeting will be March 26 at the Lisbon courthouse.

'SAFER' PANAMA LOCKS PROPOSED

'War-Time' Set Suggested; Nicaraguan Canal Out

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 13.—Addition of a third set of locks in the Panama canal will be considered by the house merchant marine committee tomorrow as a link in the administration's defense program.

On the eve of congressional hearings on a variety of proposals for supplementing the nation's "lifeline" between the Atlantic and Pacific, indications today were that the administration had turned down plans for a canal across Nicaragua.

Secretary Hull told Chairman Bland (D) of Virginia of the merchant marine committee that the $1,000,000,000 Nicaragua proposal was not in accord with the President's program. On the other hand, it was learned that the war department still was considering the extra set of locks for the Panama canal.

The latter project would cost $200,000,000. Experts said it would do much to minimize the danger of sabotage crippling the existing canal, which Secretary Woodring declared "must be made absolutely impregnable."

The governor of the Panama Canal zone has recommended that extra locks be installed as an alternate route from one to three miles from existing ones to lessen chances of enemy aircraft disabling the waterway with a single, well-placed bomb. The canal already is equipped with some emergency locks.

Under present plans, the new locks would be reserved exclusively in time of war for military traffic both to speed up its movement and as an added protection against sabotage.

Bland said his committee would study both the Panama and Nicaragua projects, but he pointed out that it would take about seven years to complete the Nicaragua canal and this could not help in current defense plans.

29 MORE TO GET WPA COUNTY PROJECT JOBS

Special To The Review.
LISBON, March 13.—WPA headquarters here today announced the assignment of 29 more men to county PWA projects to report this week.

The assignment included six from East Liverpool, six from East Palestine, four from Salem, three from Lisbon, two from Wellsville and the balance from rural districts.

250 GET '39 LICENSES IN SATURDAY'S 'RUSH'

The first actual rush in the automobile license business for 1939 plates occurred here Saturday when about 250 owners purchased tags from the two registrars.

Fred Winland reported that he had issued about 150 sets, boosting his total to about 250. The Columbiana County Motor Club issued plates to about 100 applicants during the day.

Mr. Winland has 3,800 sets of plates for pleasure cars, his series being L-G, L-H, L-J, and L-K, from 51 to 999. The automobile club is L-A and L-E from 51 to 99.

The new blue and white license plates now may be used legally. Owners without the 1939 plates after March 31 will be subject to arrest and fine.

CELEBRATING THE 52ND WEDDING ANNIVERSARY of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, their family surprised them Saturday night at their home in First ave., East End. Gifts were presented to the bride and groom by their children. Mrs. Carl Shub of Gary, Ind., Mrs. James Johnson and Mrs. Melvin George, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lottie Calvin. Covers were arranged for the husbands of the daughters, 11 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren. There were two sets of four generations present. Flowers and a large wedding cake decorated the table.

Mrs. Gray was born in New Cumberland, W. Va., 69 years ago. She was united in marriage to Mr. Gray in Little Rock, Ark., March 11, 1887, and they came to East Liverpool 43 years ago. Mr. Gray was born in Madison, Ind., 75 years ago and is employed with the S. C. Williams Co.

"Old Timers" of the First Church of Christ, including members of the two Sunday school classes when the church was located where the parsonage now stands, enjoyed a 6:30 o'clock coverdish party Saturday night in the home of Miss Anna Beardmore and Mrs. Ella Beardmore Hindle, Wall st.

The class of young ladies was taught originally by A. W. Scott and the class of young men was taught by Miss Mame Jackman. Several members of the two classes were also members of the choir at that time.

Snappers and Jonquills with a color scheme of yellow and pink decorated the table, at which covers were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cain, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Applegate, Mr. and Mrs. Belle Weber, Mrs. Nannie Allen and Miss Beardmore. Reminiscences followed dinner.

Officers of the organization are: Mr. Aley, president; Mr. Cain, vice president; Mr. Applegate, secretary, and Mr. John Scott, treasurer.

Plans were made for another reunion during the summer at Thompson park.

Mr. Maurice Douglas of Uhrichsville, a member of the society, died recently.

Forty members of Pride of Valley council 4, Daughters of America, met Friday night in the Sons of Veterans' hall, East Sixth st., with Mrs. Mary Fuller, councilor, in charge. Plans were made for a coverdish dinner to be held Friday, March 17, celebrating the birthdays of the members born in January, February and March.

Seven tables of 500 were in play during the social hours, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Mary Price and her committee.

Tonight the council will present a flag to the Washington school at the monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers association, the presentation speech to be made by Mrs. Ruth Hamilton. Thursday night a flag will be presented by Mrs. Georgia Mase to the Pentecostal church.

DAILY PATTERN

NEW SCALLOPING FOR MATRONS PATTERN 4035 BY ANNE ADAMS

The matron who is young for her years . . . and manages her "personal appearance" as well as she manages her home-making . . . will fall in love with Pattern 4035. For here is a frock charming and youthful, yet comfortable for kitchen or car, and easy to cut, fit and finish. All the way to 50 goes the size range, since Anne Adams finds it as perfect for stouter figures as for women who wear size 34. The scalloped neckline is so flattering! And you can see that extra fullness below the yoke at the back takes care of proportions no longer youthful, while the skirt is blessed with a soft, slimming panel! Make the puffed-sleeve version — and the dainty scalloped-sleeve style too.

Pattern 4035 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 takes 3 1/2 yards 25 inch fabric and 3 1/2 yard ribbon.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Order, and enjoy, the finest Anne Adams spring pattern book ever issued! All those stunning clothes you want to make in a jiffy are "paged!" Select from frocks for classroom, office and the home! Also — "special occasion" gowns, sportswear, suits, lingerie, and ensemble outfits! Patterns for everyone from one to seventy are included, and each brings important hints on how to sew easily, thriftily, smartly! Write today. Price of book 15 cents. Price of pattern, 15 cents. Together, book and pattern are 25 cents.

Expert Declares Regular Care For Feet, Legs Guards Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

WATCH the behavior of your feet. Don't sit with feet resting on the sides. Place them flat on the floor, fairly close together.

When walking point toes straight ahead. Step so that the weight of the body is evenly distributed; coming down first on the heels makes for awkward movement.

The human foot is a delicate piece of machinery and it doesn't carry a guarantee that it won't get out of order. Considering the load carried by the little footies each day, it is a crying shame that they aren't provided with suitable, well-fitting shoes and treated with consideration.

A massage now and then with cold cream will refresh them, keep the flesh from smarting.

You don't have to have an ocean to be a bathing beauty; or even a lake. You need just a nice shower or bath tub. We apologize for harping on the same old thing, but any dress fitter will tell you that the daily bath does not go on apace. Some of the prettiest dressed ladies carry with them the poisonous B. O. than which there is nothing more offensive.

The skin cannot function normally if it carries a film of debris that is composed of the exudations of sweat and sebaceous glands, skin scales that are ever shedding, and atmospheric dust that is picked up through the friction of clothing. This cutaneous rubbish decomposes quickly. It contains chemicals that become horridly odorous.

In the arm pits are the busiest sweat glands. They work overtime. After the bath a detergent should be used. Cosmetic and drug shops offer a variety of products; if one won't do the business another one will.

Moist hands are the penalty one pays for letting the nervous system have tantrums. Dust them with borated talcum and put a little talcum in your gloves.

This is the season when the impertinent nose gets rosy. It is particularly inclined to put up a blushing surface if one suffers from sluggish circulation. To combat that condition take breathing exercises, walk every day, and every morning have a salt glow. Moistens a small bowlful of salt, friction it briskly into the body surface, turn on the tepid shower, chill gradually.

Local treatment consists of nightly applications of ointment of zinc oxide. Get a tube from your druggist. Don't massage with it. Spread on a thin film with the flattened finger.

of hanging a man's garments so that none of his precious belongings can fall out of the pockets. For she that committeth this crime causeth the first tragedy of the honeymoon.

Study the arrangement of thy kitchen shelves and make thy living room a place of charm and beauty.

But first acquaint thyself with all the secret nooks and crannies of thine house, where thy beloved may hide things from himself. For thou shalt soon discover that a man never misplaceeth things, but all the world is "against" him and "somebody" is always snatching his shoes, his trousers, his toothpaste and his hat, and secreting them where he cannot find them!

I charge thee, acquire an understanding of furniture and odd tables and smoking stands and like iniquitous inventions of the devil, which must not be placed in the middle of the room, where a man may commit suicide over them in the darkness of the night, but must be nailed to the ceiling that he may live in safety.

Yea, verily, thou canst not learn too soon that burned holes and cigaret stains and rings upon the mahogany are an adornment and not a blemish—and may always be washed off.

Likewise, remember that when a man is tying his white evening tie, it is the moment to "go into the silence," and not a time at which to inform him that the house is on fire, neither to ask for the price of a new hat.

Consider also, that an efficient wife must possess seven astral bodies, one of which fetcheth the aspirin and the clean towels, whilst another watcheth the coffee, and another answereth the telephone, and another powdereth her nose.

You, understand, I adjure thee that a fresh coiffure worn at the breakfast table will not keep the toast hot, and that airy persiflage or a good joke sprung before the second cup of coffee provoketh violence—but not mirth.

Know, too, thou spring bride, that a man's love must be held by many devices; but that a woman's love, even as a porous plaster, is supposed to stick without holding.

PEOPLE MAKE A COMMUNITY

GEORGE S. ELLIS

Although only 30 years old, George S. Ellis, associate manager of the East Liverpool-State Theaters, Inc., has crowded into his life as much travel and as many interesting experiences as the average man of 60.

It all started down in Atlanta, Ga., where he was born. The glistening lights of the local theater had a "come hither" effect upon young George so one day he left school, mustered his courage, walked into the manager's office and asked for a job. He got one. It wasn't much . . . that of custodian . . . but it was a start.

He did so well keeping the place clean that he soon was "called up from the ground floor" and put into a nice, shiny usher's uniform. The rest came as a matter of course. He rose to captain of ushers then to assistant manager and on to manager.

That all started 15 years ago and since then he has worked in all parts of the country. The list of cities in which he has managed theaters reads like a summer vacationist's railroad ticket . . . New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Columbus, Uniontown, Pa., Steubenville and finally East Liverpool. He arrived here seven years ago.

Although his travels have taken him into the inner circles of stage and screen celebrities in Hollywood and New York, he finds something here in East Liverpool that many of the other communities lack.

"I guess it's because the folks are so congenial here," he said. "Sure, that's it . . . that's why I like the town."

Mr. Ellis, a bachelor, lives with his widowed mother, two sisters and two brothers at 734 Bradshaw ave. His hobbies are sports, with a preference for swimming, football, baseball and basketball.

He is a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal church and belongs to the Elks and Eagles.

Health Conscious Adults Switch to Milk . . .

Grown-ups are becoming more and more health-conscious every day. Research and scientific experiments continually reveal the value of milk in diets. General studies of various areas in war periods have disclosed the fact that when milk is lacking the tuberculosis rate rises rapidly; on the other hand, goes down quickly as soon as the populace are again being supplied with milk.

Nationally famous specialists recommend milk in some form with every meal—as a refreshing drink, or used in cooking. For an extra measure of food value insist on Golden Star Sunshine Vitamin 'D' Milk.

—How To Keep Well—

Nervous System Overworked By Tempo Of Today

Hundreds Of New Responses
Make Living Much More Complex In Decade

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
SUPPOSE it were possible to transplant the human nervous system inside an oyster, think how the oyster would feel!

So said one of our great educators, a world traveler, and executive of wide experience, in his pleasant, expansive way at dinner the other night.

The oyster, with its simple mechanism and simple responses, would simply be overwhelmed. And yet, to a certain extent that is what has happened to all modern men. We have not replaced our nervous systems but they have to make so many more responses than in the days of our fathers and grandfathers. There are so many more communications. If anyone wanted to tell my grandfather something important, he would have to put on his hat and coat and walk about a mile before he did it. Or else he would have to write a letter. Not many people would take the trouble to do that, so grandfather did not have many communications.

Different Now
But in this generation you can telephone him, telegraph him, multigraph letters for him and send him a dozen an hour, publish morning, noon, evening and weekly papers for him and tune radio announcements in his ear all evening.

He has to make decisions about not only whether to get a new pair of pants and how to pay his note at the bank, purely personal affairs, but also about the Wages and Hours Bill, relief for flood sufferers, what to do about China, Spain, Hitler and Mexico.

It was pointed out by a man of large affairs that in other times, 10 years ago, when he returned from a vacation there were perhaps three things on his desk that demanded attention. Now there is a pile of radiograms and messages to which it is physically impossible to give attention.

Public men are supposed to be subjected to more strain of this kind than the little fellow. Constantly pointed out are the signs of wear and tear on the appearance of presidents during office. They say there hasn't been a premier of England during this century who has not broken in some way in office.

Provides Defense
But the prominent man soon learns to provide a defense mechanism. He has to be protected because no one human nervous system can be the center of such an onslaught.

It is really the little man in the street who needs consideration. I heard the story of a queer situation the other day. A man walked into a large radio station and said they would have to turn it down because he heard it all the time. An official asked him what they were playing at the moment and he told them. Then they said, "Well, we looked it up; he knew what we were playing." So they telephoned the studio to broadcast an announcement. "We are making an experiment." "What did they say just then?" the man was asked. "We are making an experiment," he replied.

So they investigated him and found that he was a carborundum worker; that he had a lot of carborundum dust in his mouth. The metal in his teeth gave him a sort of receiving set in his mouth.

Daily Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, March 14

A DAY on which to expect the unexpected is the augury for this day, based on the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects. The favorable trends of the planet of sudden upheaval, radical change, innovation, adventure and romance forecast ultimate and surprising benefits, after rather breath-taking and devastating experiences. It would be wise to make readjustments looking toward opportunities for progress and desirable change.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of definite progress and productivity despite sudden and devastating moves toward readjustment to new interests, fresh associations and environments. Important adventures and possibly sensational romance may be included in the upheaval, in which new contracts and unexpected business may mean advancement. Endeavor to grasp happy situations with equanimity and regard for health.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile, progressive and adventurous, with imagination, inventive genius and originality.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters
Asey May, Cape Cod sleuth.
Zeb Chase, young Baked Bean heir.
James Warren, Mary Randall's ward.
Yesterday: Mary Randall, antique dealer, is shot.

CHAPTER SEVEN 'Keep It Quiet'

"SHE was sittin' in a chaise longue by the window," Asey said. "Apparently she leaned forward past the window. As she did, someone outdoors let go with both barrels of a shotgun. Deer ball. Marble size. Now, tend to that girl."

"Oh, she's comin' to? Well, get water. Is this a private line?" "Billingsgate 327," Zeb said vaguely. "I guess so."

Asey cranked at the phone bell. "Hello, Nellie? Hi. Say, get me Doc Cummings. He is? Get his wife—she out, too? Oh. Know where they are? Oh, I see. Asey laughed. "Well, listen. Get him for me, will you? The Warren girl's—yes, up to the Hollow. She's fallen, and knocked herself out. That's right. Fine. Have him call me right back."

Zeb stared at him. "What is this?"

"Cummings' wife," Asey said. "Is stuck on the ferris wheel up town. That's the ferris wheel's stuck. An' she's up too high to get down. She's havin' hysterics, an' the doc's havin' a different variety on solid land. Nellie'll get him."

He strode out into the kitchen and brought back an electric percolator.

"Plug this in, Zeb," he said. "When it seems done, feed Jane some. Okay, youngster? Lay there, an' don't think. You—ah, there's the doc."

He didn't bother with the formalities of saying hello, and asked who it was.

"Listen, Mary Randall's been killed. Shotgun. Deer ball. Through the window. Keep it quiet. Get that state cop Lane, and Weston, and come over. Your wife?" Asey chuckled. "She'll keep. Hustle."

He was still chuckling at the thought of the portly Mrs. Cummings aloft on the ferris wheel when he turned around to the white faced couple by the couch.

"Asey," Zeb said, "you knew, back there on the road, that it was a gun? That explosion?"

"I wondered," Asey said. "Feel better, Jane? Look, you was here in the house. Didn't you hear the shot? You must have." She shook her head. "I had the radio going. Not very loud, but it was on the table right by my ear. The static was awful on the short wave, and then the firework kept banging. I did hear one awfully loud noise, but I thought it was the fireworks finale. Is she really dead, Asey?"

"I said so, Jane, did your aunt—"

"Godmother."

"Did she have any enemies?"

"Never heard of one. Dealers and customers both liked her. She—"

"Relative? What about them?"

"Her husband's dead, her people are mostly in England, and the few over here live on the west coast. She has a daughter, Eloise. She went up town for the goings on, with Mr. Prettyman."

Asey raised his eyebrows. "Mister Who?"

"Prettyman," Zeb said. "Tertius Prettyman. He's in the insurance business. Old Prettyman at the point's son. He's fifty-odd. Look, have you met Eloise, Asey?"

He caught Jane's eye. "Oh, well. Well, she's all the near relations Mary had, anyway."

"All and only," Jane said. "I—"

Asey. I appreciate the way you're beating about the bush, but let's have the worst. What is it?"

"Without meanin' the least disrespect to Mrs. Randall," Asey told her, "the worst'll be to blow this Old Home Week sky high, an' to put the town in debt so much it'll never recover. This sort of thing acts two ways. Some few folks'll come to gape. But the majority'll leave as fast as their cars'll start, particularly when they learn how this happened. I'd say that 95 percent of the people who've planned to spend the week here, they'll look at the thickness of their walls, an' consider how many times they pass by a lighted window, an' promptly exit. Until we get to the bottom of this, the headlines'll be 'Madman Loose,' or 'Maniac at Large.' You, an' Miss Randall, you'll get headlines, too."

"For me especially," Jane gulped down some coffee. "Because where as you've not made a point of it—well, they'll arrest me, won't they? No one will ever believe in this world that I could sit here in this room, and not hear what happened. And there's a shotgun out in the shed, too."

"Whose, yours?"

"It belongs to Zeb. He left it here once, and forgot about it," Jane said.

"My heavens, Jane, did I?"

"You did, and I wasn't going to dash after you with it. You're so impulsive, you might have misunderstood. Anyway, the gun's there, and I'm here, and all the town heard me say up in the club parlor today that I hadn't a cent except what Mary gave me, and that I was afraid of being fired almost any time. I was joking, but it won't be a joke tomorrow."

"They won't," Zeb said. "They can't!"

"I'm used to headlines," Jane told Asey. "When father died, I was 500 miles away at school, but you might have thought I pushed him out of the window. When mother married the Spig—oh, but why go on! I'm used to it. Shakespeare wrote a sonnet once about how if you got the worst at first, then you were more content about the remainder. Or something. Maybe it was Nash. Zeb, aren't you glad I never decided to marry you?"

"If you'll marry me tonight—"

Zeb said.

"Don't be quixotic!" Jane said. "Think of your father and the headlines. 'Baked Beans Heir Jilts Suspect Fiancee, Romance Ends in Old Home Killing'—d'you suppose they'll call it 'The Old Home Killing'?"

Asey, I don't mean to gabble on so, but I feel wound up. I—well—I feel desperate, if you want to know. Oh, Asey, I simply adore Mary, and she's been so marvelous to me!"

Zeb put his arm around her, and she hid his shoulder.

"Look after her," Asey said. "I hear a car."

He went out as Dr. Cummings, and Lane of the state police, both calm and professionally expectant, got out of a sedan. In the back seat was Weston, sitting like a statue. Despair was written all over him.

"Oh, come, Wes," Asey said. "It's bad. It's awful. But nothing's as bad as you look. Cheer up, man! Lane'll settle this for you."

"It's the end," Weston said. "It's in the contract."

"In the what?"

"Contract, Philbrick's contract. We're going on the air as a quaint old-fashioned New England town. And if—"

"If you ain't, you get the air? I see. Well, come in, an' let's see what we can do."

Dr. Cummings looked around the bedroom and backed hastily out into the hall.

"Someone loathed her like poison," he observed, "or else we have a maniac loose. So someone waited outside, and shot at the shadow of her head on the window shade. What a—Asey, I feel responsible, in a way. She wasn't well when she first came to town, and I suggested among other things that she go to bed early, since she had her business to run during the day. She kept the early-to-bed habit up. I don't know why. Everyone in town knew about it, of course. There's a book—was she reading?"

"Guess so," Asey said. "N'en she leaned forward to get a cigarette from that box. Tell me, what was she like?"

"Mary was very pleasant, and she knew her business. Used to be a buyer for some New York firm, and it blew up, and she landed here. Seemed to enjoy burying herself out in this hell hole. Said she made a living. She's got some fine stuff out in her shop in the barn. Had a lot of customers, and did her rubbing and restoring and finishing all herself. Great worker, very competent woman."

"Enemies?"

"She got on well with everyone. Of course she got the women up on their heels once in a while, but they all liked her except Brinley's wife. That Brinley woman thinks she knows it all. Took a course in interior decorating once, and no one's allowed to forget it. Awful row over the Club Parlor."

"Who won?"

"Mary, hands down. Then Bessie claimed that Mary was only after a chance to unload her antiques, and make a profit. Lot of fuss. Turned out to be a nice room, though. Well, let's get busy. Going to be nasty for the town. Any way out?"

"Of keeping it quiet? Maybe," Asey said. "Maybe, if—say, what's the daughter like?"

Dr. Cummings looked at him over the rims of his glasses.

"I'm not a psychiatrist, or a psychologist," he announced cryptically. "I'm just a plain country doctor. Will you tell Lane and Weston to come here, and bring Lane's camera, and all that stuff."

Half an hour later, Asey went into the living room.

Zeb and Jane still sat on the couch, staring at the pattern of the hooked rug before the fireplace. Weston, his face a yard long, sucked at a dead pipe in the corner. He wore the sort of expression usually reserved for funerals, or automobile accidents, or various other forms of sudden death.

German Does Most To Aid Jersey Barkeep In Getting Title Shot At Champion Louis—'Old Jess' Orders Wrong Brand—Cage Meet Draws 1,800

By EDDIE BREITZ
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, March 13.—Town tattle: Max Schmeling doesn't know it, but he did more than anybody else to get Tony Galento that Joe Louis title shot... Virginia visitors report one of their bigger schools is making good eyes, at a North Carolina football coach... Fred Perry is becoming Americanized so thoroughly he now yells "aw nerts" when he misses a shot... Old Jess... Willard is doing O. K. as a representative of Jack Dempsey's whiskey interests except that he forgets Jack's firm doesn't sell scotch and now and then steps up to the bar and orders the other fellow's stuff.

Whitney Martin writes from Dixie that Connie Mack, who is 76, looks 60, feels like 30 and has the enthusiasm of 20... And how about E. J. Hawkins, who has been teaching and coaching in a Coffeyville (Kans.) school for well nigh 50 years?... He is 73, looks 45 and has just married a girl of 27 whose grandmother went to school to him.

Personal: Jack Dempsey, who was given a medal or something for doing the most for boxing last year, has slashed his price for refereeing wrestling matches 15 percent... Johnny Evers, who gets $1 per year for running the Albany Senators, also pays his way into his own park... Not all the boys go to Pitt just to carry the mail. Dick Cassiano, star back, wound up last term with four A's and one B in his class work.

If the Yanks would agree to play one night game in Cleveland it is estimated every one of the 70,000 seats in the Indians' stadium would be filled... The Yanks' share of the receipts would run about $25,000... How can Ed Barrow laugh off dough like that?

Hoop hysteria: Basketball really goes to town this month... In Indiana 800 teams battle it out for the school title... The southern textile tourney at Greenville, S. C., drew 75 teams comprising 800 boys and girls from six states... But Frank Spencer, sports editor of the Winston-Salem (N. C.) Journal, sponsors the daddy of them all... This week 1,800 boys and girls from 122 North Carolina and Virginia high schools tee off in a 16-day grind... Frank says it's the biggest carnival ever held on one floor... And don't forget the college tournament in the Garden.

Bishop Cannon of Virginia delivered a temperance lecture in a Lake Charles, La., church... Connie Mack said: "There was a time when it would have been my duty to march my whole team up to hear the bishop."

Grapefruit League: Charlie Ruffing has developed a fadeaway... Oscar Vitt is arranging his pitching schedule so Bobby Feller can start six of Cleveland's seven night games... The guy the Giants really are yearning for is Prof. Danny MacFadden of the Bees.

CHESTER FIVE LOSES CONSOLATION BATTLE

Chester High school's cagers wound up their season Saturday night by dropping the consolation game of the Wellsburg, W. Va. tourney to Follansbee, 31 to 24.

Follansbee led from the start with 10 points to Chester's six in the first quarter. The halftime score was 18 to 10. Follansbee entered the fourth with a 24 to 14 advantage.

Although Chester was outscored from the floor, it beat its opponent at the foul line with 10 of 17 completed against five of 20.

Caporatti paced the winners with 13 points. Michel did best for Chester with seven.

Dykes To Face 'Uphill Struggle' With 'More Brains Than Talent'

Merv Connors Is 'Brightest Hope' For '39 Season

BY ROBERT MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
PASADENA, Calif., March 13.—Endowed with more brains than talent, the Chicago White Sox face an uphill battle if they are to escape from the second division of the American league this year.

Beset with hard luck from the very start of the 1938 campaign, which ended with the pale hose in sixth place, the 1939 season seems destined to be another shaky one unless some of the possibilities blossom into actualities and lend a hand to smart-manuevering Jimmy Dykes.

Westminster Collegians Win Encounter With Riverviews

Westminster's Collegians, conquerors of Pitt, Carnegie Tech and John Carroll, invaded East Liverpool Saturday night to hand the Riverview Florists a 49 to 45 setback.

Midway in the second it looked like the revamped Riverviews might avenge the 55-49 reverse handed them by the Collegians earlier in the season. With the count at 19 to 17 George "Red" Silverman, former Carnegie Tech ace and new Riverview guard, slipped in a basket to tie the score. Two charity tosses by Porter Mackey and a field goal by Paul "Bones" Neeslerode lifted the score to 23 to 19 in the locals' favor.

The lead was short-lived, however. The Collegians' Joe Spak notched a foul shot and a goal each by Tom Patton and Mel Miller regained the advantage. It was the only time the Riverviews managed to pass the invaders.

Hoyt Predicts America Will Lead Olympics

Michigan Field Coach Lauds Growth Of Track Here

By TOM SILER.
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, March 13.—America's track and field stars will be doing business at the same old victory stand in the 1940 Olympics, says Charles "Chuck" Hoyt, the man who went to Michigan as a trainer and became a builder of track champions.

Hoyt, lanky and grey-haired, who looks more like a professor than a coach, sees the United States as a dominant Olympic power so long as track continues to grow in this country.

"Track now is one of this country's fastest growing sports," says Hoyt, whose Michigan team won its sixth consecutive Big Ten indoor title here last Saturday.

"College squads are getting larger and track meets draw bigger crowds. Records are broken year after year as the competition gets stiffer. But the end isn't anywhere near.

"This continued growth assures us just as strong an Olympic team in 1940 as we have had in the past. "I wouldn't attempt to name potential Olympic material in other conferences but we have several boys ready for international competition in the Big Ten.

"At Michigan we've got Bill Watson, the shot putter; Elmer Gedeon, a fine hurdler; Ralph Schwarzkopf, distance runner, and Allen, a high jumper, who is out of competition right now with a bad knee.

"Wisconsin has Milton Padway, a pole vaulter already doing better than 14 feet, and Walter Mehl, distance runner. Then there's Bob Diefenthaler, Illinois' crack high jumper, and Harley Howells, the quarter-mile of Ohio State."

At the start of this season Hoyt had won six indoor titles and five outdoors out of a possible 16.

There's further worry at second base, not to mention the possibility that Luke Appling's once broken ankle might fold again and leave a wide gap at shortstop. Jack Hayes, the regular second sacker, won't be ready for the opening game, due to a knee operation, and while Eric "Booby" McNair, bought from Boston, will take over the job, he is a natural shortstop and hardly up to the standard of Hayes. Also acquired to protect the infield was Willie Bejma, brought back to the majors after a fine year with St. Paul.

Luke Sewell, longtime "old reliable" of the catching staff, is gone, and the job is open to battle between George Rensa, Mike Tresh, Ken Sylvestri and Norman Schlueter. The coming exhibition games with the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh out here probably will decide which three will stay with the club.

WATERS TOPS SCORERS IN 42 TO 16 WALLOPING OF TITLE CHALLENGERS

Winner Will Represent District At State Tournament In Columbus This Week—Dillonvale Takes 'B' Crown In Fast Encounter With St. John's

TILTONSVILLE, March 13.—Coach Stanley Plummer's Bridgeport Bulldogs today were enjoying the acclaim of the southeastern Ohio cage sector after winning their fourth consecutive valley district basketball crown here Saturday night by overwhelming Bellaire, 42 to 16.

Led by Bill Waters, sharpshooting forward, the Bulldogs bottled Bellaire's two best scoring bets, Forwards Radawic and Fordyce, to pace the challengers from the start.

Both teams depended upon the fast break. However, Bellaire's biggest difficulty was its inability to penetrate the tight Bridgeport defense. Time after time fleet Forwards Radawic and Fordyce worked up to the basket only to find the ball still being passed to and fro in mid-court. Bellaire also experienced ill fortune at the foul line, capitalizing on only four of 12 attempts while Bridgeport converted six of nine.

Where Bridgeport gained its edge was in the ability of its members to hit the hoop. Eight of 20 Bridgeport players who saw service scored. Waters led with 17 points and Holland connected for 10 while Amrine and Kouski made four and three, respectively.

Aside from Fordyce, who tallied eight points and Varua who made five, no other Bellaire player was able to make more than two.

Bridgeport opened the scoring early to lead 9 to 4 at the end of the first period. It widened the margin in the second to make the half-time count 20 to 7. Any doubt as to the outcome of the battle was settled in the third when Bridgeport continued its bombardment with 16 points to six. It then laid back to enjoy prosperity with six points in the final.

The victory was Bridgeport's 16th in 22 starts this year while the Bellaire loss was its seventh in 20 games.

Another Bellaire title contender lost its chance to go to Columbus when Dillonvale romped over Bellaire St. John's 37 to 29 in the class B final.

THE GUMPS

By Gus Edson

WELL, FENIMORE, OLD BOY—IT LOOKS LIKE THE CHAMPAGNE IS ON YOD—GUMPS HAS ONLY ONE MORE HOUR TO PUT IN AN APPEARANCE!

YES—I'M IN, ALL RIGHT, BUT WE'LL WAIT THAT HOUR TO MAKE IT OFFICIAL—

HA-HA—EASIEST $2000 I EVER MADE—WHAT A SAG GUMP WAS EVER TO MAKE SUCH A BET WITH ME!

SH—HERE COMES HIS WIFE!

THE HANDS OF THE BIG CLOCK SEEM TO RACE ACROSS ITS FACE AS TIME GLIDES SWIFTLY INTO ETERNITY—ANDY'S CHANCES GROW SLIMMER WITH EACH TICK—

TIME GALLOPS ON!!

YOU DON'T HAVE TO CHASE RAINBOWS

Chasing Rainbows for the pot of gold that is never found is useless folly, but it's a profitable pleasure to insert a "cash" producing Want Ad and sell those unwanted odds and ends that you no longer have any use for.
